England Hangs Them Addis Ababa in 3 Days The U. S. A. Holds Back Seeing the Inside

By Arthur Brisbane

Two thousand English men and women paraded around Winson Green prison yesterday, protesting, while British justice hanged Dorothy Waddingham, 34-year-old mother of five children, one of them only six months old.

She had committed murder; and in England when you commit murder they hang you, protest or no protest. The crowd, led by Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, who objects to any capital punishment, was orderly. Some knelt and prayed.

Only the new King Edward could have saved the woman's life, and English kings are too wise to meddle with law.

The woman had murdered with poison a patient in her nursing home and the patient's daughter to get an $8000 legacy, willed to her by the victim. The trap was sprung, a black flag was run up on the prison flagstaff, women kneeled, praying and weeping. England had hanged the ninth woman in this century.

They hang them in England and they have few murderers. We parole them, or pardon them, or let them almost die of old age in prison, and have thousands of murders.

Rome reports, "Addis Ababa in three days," meaning that Ethiopia's capital is to be taken next week. That might remind some Italians unpleasantly of the big war, when Germans, marching through Belgium, held up five fingers, saying in German:

"Paris in five days."

It was a long "five days," but Germany was fighting France, England, Russia and some other countries. Mussolini is fighting Ethiopia.

He says by the way, that if Haile Selassie wants peace now, he must go direct to Marshal Pietro Badoglio and get it from him. The League of Nations has waited and wavered too long to have anything to say about it. Victory makes us independent.

You read with mild surprise that throughout the world, generally, industrial activity would have been ahead, recently, except that the United States held down the average. Leaving out the United States, world production increased. You wonder when this "richest country on earth" will catch up, and START AHEAD.

The "Annalist" shows that in spite of floods, business here improved last month. The important increase was in automobile production. Men want to move, above whatever else they do.

Seeing the inside of things began long ago, when primitive woman learned to know what her husband was thinking. It began, physically, with the Roentgen and X-rays, bones photographed, bullets located.

A remarkable new device for "seeing inside of things" is reported to Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., by one of his laboratories. To learn what happens inside of an automobile cylinder when the gas explodes, a camera that takes 5000 pictures a second is geared to the crankshaft.

Explosion in the cylinder from "flame to ashes" lasts only one-250th part of a second, but during that flash the camera takes 20 separate photographs. Old Daguerre, when he found his first Daguerreotype, and Ruskin, who praised them, never dreamed of that. The speed of light, 186,000 miles a second, makes it possible.

A wonderful thing is "microchemistry." It tells scientists that off the coast of Greenland sea water contains more gold than in New York harbor; that one village in Switzerland has less goitre than another, because in the first the dewdrops contain more iodine.

Dr. Benedetti Pichler of New York University expects great things of microchemistry, developed originally by two Austrian scientists.

Besides being "the soul of wit," brevity is also a sign of youth. Senator Borah proved that he possesses brevity and youth after the Illinois primary election in which Colonel Knox carried Chicago, and he, Senator Borah, carried the farming regions: "Knox," said he, "carried Chicago. I carried Illinois."

Mr. King, Hawaiian delegate to Congress, recommends the hula-hula to his fellow statesmen that would reduce. The hula-hula, he says, is "delightfully graceful dance, not a hoochy-koochy, as some might think."

Sedate senators or representatives dancing the hula-hula in straw skirts would be charming, but the same results could be obtained with less effort, by eating less—something that never occurred to the Hawaiians.

JAQUES IS ARRESTED ON OLD CHARGE

Her Suit Nears Jury

MRS. LOUISE JAQUES

Hears Ex-Husband in $50,000 Suit

Henry F. Jaques was arrested in Suffolk County courthouse today, after testifying at trial of the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by his first wife against his second.

On a complaint charging him with desertion of wife and child, sworn out two years ago by his first wife before their divorce, he was taken into custody by Lieutenants John F. Donovan and Robert Evans.

They took him to Brookline for arraignment, while final arguments were being made at the suit for damages, which will reach the jury late today.

Witnesses of the dramatic interruption of the alienation suit were the two women battling over Jaques' affections, Mrs. Louise P. Grennan Jaques, of Brookline, his first wife, and Mrs. Ruth M. Anthony Jaques, formerly of Brookline, his present wife.

Witness for the latter, Jaques

2 SCHOOL JOB GRAFT CHARGES ARE DROPPED

BANDITS GRAB BANK CASH IN R. R. HOLDUP

Nutley, N. J., April 17 (INS)—With Manhattan's towering skyscapers as a backdrop, seven armed desperadoes revived an exploit of Jesse James's days in the old Southwest here today, making a clean getaway with an undetermined amount of loot obtained in a spectacular stickup of an Erie railroad commuter train.

Estimates of the loot ranged from ridiculously small sums up into the thousands. While police said the baggage master of the train estimated the swag at $58,000 in bank notes, Railway Express officials insisted that only $958.35 had been garnered by the holdup men.

A. M. Kelly, assistant superintendent o fthe railroad, substantiated this latter estimate.

WORK QUICKLY

The train, eastbound from Paterson to Jersey City, was looted with amazing celerity when it halted at the Walnut street station here, only fifteen miles from New York where nearly all the passengers were bound. A goodly portion of these aboard the train were commuters enroute from their suburban homes to their New York offices.

Overpowering the baggage master in the baggage car, and relieving him of his gun, the men escaped with contents of the cars strong box. One report said the men didn't even bother to open the box but carted it to their waiting automobile, threw it in and sped away.

CAREFULLY PLANNED

The stick-up bore all the earmarks of careful planning and quick execution that characterized the old-time exploits of southwestern outlaws. Like Jesse James, too, the newest mode in train robbers displayed a sardonic sense of humor.

Before leaving the baggage car, one of the bandits reached upward and pulled the "emergency stop" cord—either as a gesture of derision or a mark of triumph.

So. Boston May Regain Losses

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Representative John W. McCormack today introduced a bill in the House to reimburse South Boston property owners for losses suffered as a result of condemnation proceedings instituted by the government in connection with the Public Works Administration's Old Harbor Village housing project.

The PWA originally selected one site for the low cost housing project and instituted condemnation proceedings against the required property.

As a result of a circuit court of appeals decision at Louisville, holding the government could not seize property by right of eminent domain for housing purposes. The original site was abandoned and the project was started on vacant land nearby.

DiStasio Death Sentence Delayed

Frank DiStasio, 52, former Revere merchant, won an extra week's lease on life today because Judge Nelson P. Brown was unable to appear in Middlesex Court to sentence him to his death in the electric chair.

DiStasio recently lost an appeal from a verdict of first degree murder for the torch slaying of Frank Crowley a (the West End in Hudson last May.

New York, April 17 (AP)—It was a two-way stock market today, with oils and specialties pushing ahead while many of the recent leaders backtracked.

Except in a few favored issues, trading was extremely light, optimistic domestic economic developments were offset, somewhat, by a cloudier foreign picture.

JUDGE RITTER REMOVED BY SENATE

Washington, April 17 (INS)—Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Miami, Fla., was removed from office by the Senate today when it convicted him on a blanket article, charging him with misconduct on the bench.

The vote was 56 to 28, the exact number necessary to find him guilty.

The article embraced six separate charges, on each of which the judge had been acquitted on previous votes.

The vote was a startling surprise as the jurist had won vindication on each of the charges, only to be found guilty when they were to be rolled into one accusation.

Senator Austin (R.) of Vermont immediately raised a point of order that Judge Ritter could not be impeached on the blanket charge when he had been acquitted on each of the six charges separately.

The point of order was immediately overruled by Senator Pittman (D.) of Nevada, president pro tem of the Senate.

RESUME CURLEY BUDGET CUT

The onslaught on Governor Curley's budget, in which a large bloc of Democrats are joining with Republicans, was renewed today in the House.

After yesterday's crushing defeat of administration forces on storm of budget items, the House began afresh with acceptance of a cut of $1000 in the Governor's item for Salisbury beach maintenance.

Representative Michael J. Jordan of Lawrence made a fight to have the $8800 figure set by the ways and means committee restored to the $9600 asked by the Governor, but he failed, on a rollcall, 89 to 106.

U. S. To Give State $252,000 for Roads

Washington, April 17 (AP)—John P. Brennan, Washington representative of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, said today he had been advised by the bureau of public roads that $252,000 in highway funds, held up since early last year, would be released to the state tomorrow.

The money, Brennan said, was due the state for roads built on a 50-50 cost program between the state and federal government.

HAWKES MUST FACE GRAFT TRIAL ALONE

Not guilty verdicts, asked by Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle as the government rested, were directed today for John J. Devlin and James W. Hawkes, on trial in Superior Court in the alleged school graft case.

The verdicts, returned by the locked jury at direction of Judge David F. Dillon, cleared both defendants of a charge of conspiracy to steal, and cleared Devlin alone on a charge of attempted larceny.

They left Hawkes on trial on only two charges—conspiracy to solicit a bribe and solicitation to give a bribe—the same charges to which Devlin suddenly pleaded guilty yesterday and then turned government witness.

REQUESTS VERDICTS

Assistant District Attorney Doyle requested the directed verdicts on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to support the charges he desired dropped.

Today's session of the trial was delayed for more than half an hour while Doyle argued, before Judge John M. Gibbs in another superior court session, on motions in connection with another school graft case which is scheduled to open Tuesday.

This is a case in which Robert

FARLEY AND CURLEY OPEN STATE DEMOCRATIC DRIVE

NATIONAL CHAIRMAN SEES FALL VICTORY CERTAIN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Pittsfield, April 17—With more than 700 enthusiastic Democrats in attendance from every section of the state, opening guns in the state and national campaign were fired here at an overflow dinner in the Hotel Wendel by Postmaster-General James A. Farley, Governor Curley and Chairman Joseph McGrath of the Democratic State Committee.

The Democratic leaders took upon Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas as the man who will come out of the Republican National Convention next June in Cleveland as the standard bearer of that party.

While Postmaster-General Farley declined to comment on the Republican contest between the several candidates for the presidential nomination, close friends of the Democratic national committeeman state that it is his conviction that Landon is so far out front that he can't be headed off.

Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Governor Curley both defended the New Deal, fayed its critics and predicted the triumphant reelection of Roosevelt.

HARMONY SHATTERED

Party harmony at the Democratic love feast was shattered near the end of the festivities when State Auditor Thomas Buckley, an added speaker, aroused the wrath of Collector of the Port Joseph A. Maynard, former state chairman of the Democratic state committee.

Buckley asserted that the Democratic party for the first time in the history of the state "now has a strong central committee," throwing a bouquet to the present chairman Joseph McGrath.

Buckley then went further. He charged past defeats to lack of an organization of this character. Maynard subsequently challenged this statement holding that the state committee under his leadership had been fully as well organized throughout the state.

Buckley refused to retreat an inch. He added that as the senior member of the state committee, having served on it for 18 years under former Chairmen Lyman, McGlue, O'Leary, Donahue, Maynard and the present chairman, McGrath, "My original statement stands."

State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, District-Attorney Thomas F. Moriarty of the western district, Lieutenant-Governor Joseph L. Hurley and Attorney-General Paul A. Dever, the four candidates for the Democratic nomination for governor, occupied seats at the head table.

Prior to the dinner, Postmaster-General Farley in an interview, commented on the primary result in Illinois. He said:

"The large vote for Roosevelt delegates received in Illinois last Tuesday confirms the contention I have made from time to time that Illinois is definitely in the Democratic column for November.

"There is no doubt that the thousand of Republicans who voted in the Democratic primary on Tuesday will be supporting President Roosevelt in November."

Receptions were tendered to Farley by the postmasters of the four western counties and by the candidates for delegates from this section to the state and national conventions.

"NOTHING SETTLED"—CURLEY

Governor Curley in commenting on the defeat of his office budget items by the House asserted that "nothing is settled until it is settled right and that will be settled right."

Farley, early in his speech, drew applause from the big gathering. When he asked his listeners to contrast with the present the gloom that existed four years ago "when a torn do of foreclosing mortgages was sweeping the agrarian belt and the producing establishments of this part of the world either were closed entirely or running on part times."

He maintained that the contrast of today is not due to chance but to the change in the policies of government when Roosevelt came to the White House.

Those claiming that business recovery is due not to the New Deal but in spite of it, he classed as "political Jeremiahs," and characterized as "wildness and absurdity" claims that the Roosevelt administration is bent on changing the Democratic form of government to a Russian Soviet System or to a dictatorship" or that the President was to abolish the Supreme Court and throw the "Constitution out of the window.

As an instance of better times under the Roosevelt administration, he cited a report of the financial statement of General Motors Corporation to stockholders showing "assets of about 150 million more" in 1935 than in the previous year.

He declared that he did not pick out this particular business incident "because Mr. Sloan is to a large extent contributor to the Celophane League or because General Motors is to a large extent a Du Pont corporation."

Naming the various alphabetical setups, he challenged the Republicans to say which they would discard.

He referred to these as rhetorical questions because, he said:

"There is no more chance of the election of a Republican President next November than there is that your Berkshire Hills should move into some adjoining state."

He further stated that it makes no difference whether the "old dealers take the logical course of naming Herbert Hoover as the standard bearer who best represents their principles, or Governor Landon of Kansas" or "mournful Colonel Knox."

Bells—Banners—and Boys

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

The blue-topped, Georgian spire of Lowell House, famous for its Russian bells, has witnessed a great many college pranks in its short existence, but today it was part of one. A white sheet, with the letters "V. F. W." blacked on, was found to be floating in the breeze by early risers today. "Flag" was publicity for a rally to be held next Monday by the Harvard Post of Veterans of Future Wars.

Vet Estate Claim Rests On One Word

Judge John C. Leggat of Middlesex Probate Court will today hear the deposition of a Los Angeles woman whose chief claim to a $12,000 estate is a tiny scrap of paper bearing the single word "David," written in pencil.

The paper has been offered in evidence by Mrs. Mary Ferenca, unable to come here for the hearing, in an effort to prove that she was the mother of David Francis, formerly of Hudson, who died in Bedford Veterans' Hospital in 1934.

Her attorney contends that the signature, purported to have been scrawled on the fly-leaf of a school book, is identical with the signature in the hospital's records.

When Francis died, after long treatment for a mental disorder incurred while in the service, it was believed he left no kin.

His estate of $12,000 represents accumulated government compensation for his war injuries.

Miss Elisabeth McCarthy, a handwriting expert, testified that the name "David" on the school book fly leaf and the signature "David Francis" in the hospital records were written by the same hand.

Judge Leggat descended from the bench to gaze at the two exhibits through a microscope.

Byrd's Next Trip Will Be in Tropics

Kansas City, April 17 (AP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who twice explored the frigid Antarctic, said in an interview here today he was planning an exploration trip in the tropics.

"I hope to take a shot at the unexplored lands in Patagonia, Brazil and New Guinea," he said. "Just how soon I'll be able to do this I don't know."

G. A. R. Chieftain Suffers Collapse

Concord, N. H., April 17 (AP)—G. A. R. Commander-in-Chief Oley Nelson, 91, of Slater, Iowa, collapsed today here and is confined to his room in a local hotel.

Luther his personal aide, W. Rockewell Clough, announced commander Nelson had improved and insisted upon leaving for Boston tonight.

Bombs Thrown In Mill Strike

Rockwood, Tenn., April 17 (INS)—A bomb believed hurled by Rockwood hosiery mill strikers exploded today near the home of women workers who refused to come out on strike.

Several women were badly shaken up, although none was thought to be seriously injured.

W. R. HEARST WINS VICTORY IN WIRE SEIZURE FIGHT

Washington, April 17 (US)—William Randolph Hearst scored a notable victory in his fight against the unlawful seizure of private telegrams by the Black lobby committee of the Senate when the federal communications commission rescinded its resolution to cooperate with the Senate probers.

Notice of this action was filed yesterday in the District of Columbia Supreme Court in the injunction suit brought by the publisher to restrain illegal interference with the private correspondence of citizens.

Other developments came rapidly in the wake of the vote in the House of Representatives Wednesday which repudiated the telegraph seizures by denying $10,000 special attorney fees to the Black committee. They were:

1—Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors, of which he is president, that the American press will not tolerate the "exhibitionistic demonstrations" by the Black committee.

2—An organizer of the Farmers' Independence Council flatly refused to answer questions by Black committee members based on evidence from illegally seized correspondence.

The communications commission admitted it had violated the law when it ordered its agents to assist the Black inquisitors in rifling files of telegraph companies here for private messages. This admission was contained in this statement of yesterday's plea:

"This commission does not assert or contend that it has the power to make disclosures of the content of any message to any person, corporation or governmental body, except when necessary, and to the extent only that is necessary to perform its own duties of regulating carriers subject to its jurisdiction under the communications act of 1934."

RESOLUTION RESCINDED

In contrast to the statement was the fact that on September 15, 1935, the commission adopted a resolution for inspection of telegrams for the purpose of making their contents available to the Black committee.

In moving to dismiss the Hearst suit, the commission revealed that the September 15 resolution has been rescinded. Its minutes show the commission on Tuesday ordered that the resolution "shall no longer remain in force or effect."

Because of this rescinding resolution, the commission asked dismissal of the Hearst injunction suit on the ground there is nothing further at issue. It promised no further seizures will be made.

However, Elisha Hanson, attorney for the publisher, declared the case will be pushed to a final decision to make certain no more private correspondence will be violated "in this odious invasion of the people's rights."

12 SERBS SHOT BY CROATS

Belgrade, April 17 (INS)—A new Serbian-Croatian crisis burst in the Balkans today when 12 Serbs were kidnaped and slain in one of the most sensational episodes in the recent history of these troubled peoples.

The victims were all peasants, including nine young men, an old palace caretaker, and the caretaker's wife and daughter.

Croats seized the Serbs after funeral services in the Zagreb Cathedral for Deputy Carlo Brkaljevitch, of the Croatian Peasants Party, who was slain during a political feud by a rival party deputy, M. Peinovitch, who was under arrest.

Kidnaped almost at the cathedral doors, the nine young men were taken to the neighborhood of a local palace near Zagreb and shot down, along with the old man and the two women.

Two Power Firms File WPA Suits

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Another New Deal case, involving the right of the federal government to provide Public Works Administration funds for publicly owned hydroelectric projects, was appealed today to the Supreme Court.

The Duke Power Company and Southern Pacific Utilities Company appealed from a ruling of the Circuit Court of Appeals at Charlotte, N. C., upholding the action of the government in providing funds for a hydroelectric plant at Buzzard Roost, S. C.

Four New Tutors Named at Harvard

Appointment of four new assistants and tutors in the division of sociology at Harvard has been announced by university officials.

The appointees are Edward C. Devereux, New York; Edward Y. Hartshorne, Haverford, Pa.; Walter C. McKain, Jr., Youngstown, O., and Theodore W. Sprague, Cambridge.

Kin Denies Society Girl, 13, Suicide

Norristown, Pa., April 17 (AP)—Joseph Haines, Jr., socially prominent manufacturer, flatly disagreed today with a police verdict that the fatal shooting of his daughter, Nancy, 13, was "suicide."

The attractive child was found last night in a bedroom of their Meadowbrook home. A bullet wound pierced her head.

Coroner W. B. Rushong withheld a death certificate, but said:

"It looks like suicide."

A brother, Joseph Haines, 3d, suggested she might have been playing pirate.

The grief-stricken father said:

"There is no question but this is purely accidental. My little girl was one of the happiest of children."

Lying near the girl's body was her father's pistol. In a waste paper basket were found two pictures of the dead girl. The head of each had been cut out and torn into bits.

Another brother, George, 18, said the dead girl paused at the door of his room about 15 minutes before the fatal shot. She asked:

"How much lodine does it take to kill a person?"

She told him she wanted it "to put on my toes." She had suffered, he said, a slight foot injury at school.

Joseph Haines told police the girl had played with paints the night before, drawing a mustache on her lip. He suggested she might have taken the gun to play pirate again.

Officer Settles His Suit for $700

For $700, Patrolman Arthur W. Kelley of the Somerville police settled his $10,000 suit for damages against Orman B. Gilman of Cambridge, Attorney Albert E. Hughes, his counsel, announced today.

The officer charged he was injured when he fell through a hole on the third floor of a Summer street, Somerville, building in May, 1935, while participating in a liquor raid on the premises.

Sir Galahad

Munich, Germany, April 17 (INS)—The Duke of Kent was credited today with risking his own neck to help a woman and a child board a moving Paris-bound train—but he only half succeeded.

The brother of King Edward of England was chatting on the platform when the train started to pull out. He hustled his duchess aboard, then saw the woman and child making a perilous attempt to climb into a compartment.

Although the train was rapidly gaining momentum, the Duke leaped off and lifted up the child—but the mother was left.

WARING'S CAREER

ACE MUSICIAN LOOKS TO 'AIR PICTURES'

The busiest man in the field of entertainment arrived in town last night with some brand new ideas.

Ideas about where the field of entertainment is headed—say five, ten or twenty years from now.

When we say the busiest man in the field of entertainment, we mean, of course, Fred Waring—for, since his initiation into the land of the footlights, which took place in 1921, he's never had a dull moment . . . On the contrary he's never even had what is commonly referred to as a "breathing spell."

For "Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians," aces among the bands of the land, have covered more territory in the various phases of show business than you'd think possible—unless you had his word for it.

FRED WARING PRISCILLA LANE ROSEMARY LANE

Fred Waring, admittedly the nation's busiest band leader, is in Boston with the idea that "Air Pictures"—Television—is soon to bring renewed impetus to the field of stage entertainment. Besides five shows a day, broadcasts and rehearsals, Fred always has his eye on the interesting things of the moment. And right now he is eager (if he can get time off) to look over the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser's egg hunt in Franklin Park tomorrow. Here's Fred with two of his stage and screen stars, Priscilla and Rosemary Lane, enjoying a bit of "egg hunt" salad.

Began in College

It all began back in his good old college days, which he admits were not completed because within him waged a constant war as to whether he should become a musician or an architect . . .

To this day he sees something symbolic between the two. Something with relation to the building of harmonious modern symphonies in the same manner that an architect would plan and draw his skyscraper. Listening to him describe it you're inclined to agree with him.—but apparently the good college fathers weren't.

Not even the fact that the College was Penn State,—and founded by his great grandfather, William G. Waring, seemed to make much difference . . .

It was clearly a case of making up one's mind.—and Fred Waring chose to illustrate with his choice by officiating as band leader at the Jay Hop Prom of the University of Michigan . . . The occasion marked the beginning of his career.

A theater engagement in Detroit followed, then more engagements, and more engagements, until Mr. Waring and his band began to realize that in the midst of all this hectic activity they had evolved into not only the busiest, but most popular of orchestras.

Being the busiest didn't surprise them,—but being very modest about it all,—being the most popular did.

First Talkie Stars

Today, having established their record in musical films as the stars of the first talkie, 'Syncopation," and gone on to establish other records in the field of stage and radio, they appear to be still just a group of eager ambitious young musicians.

They'd have to be in order to follow the pace their dashing leader sets them.

We'd heard a lot about this business of being the busiest band, and decided to ask Mr. Waring to explain.

He seems, on first meeting, to be reticent, even to the point of bashfulness, but our query brought forth both a smile, the desired explanation and some rather amazing revelations as well.

"I'll tell you," he said, "a few of the reasons why we're known as the busiest band, then you can judge for yourself whether there's any truth in the matter.

"An actor considers himself to have had a full week if after playing six nights and two matinees he is required to give a radio broadcast. As a matter of fact a very full week. And the same applies for most orchestras.

"5 Shows a Day"

"Our schedule covers that, and more, with five shows per day, excepting Sunday, when we play only four. In addition to these 34 shows a week we are under contract for Radio on the Ford Motor program calling for two broadcasts per week, and whatever time is left is devoted to rehearsals, orchestrations and arrangements. What do you think of that?"

We thought he could consider himself fully entitled to the phrase of busiest band leader. But we wondered about all those new ideas for the future of entertainment.

Having tasted all forms of it, what did he consider to be its future medium?

"Unquestionable air pictures—Television, if rightly handled," he responded. "But," he added, nothing, to my mind, will ever take the place of the legitimate stage . . . Television as an entertainment medium, will, I believe, eventually enter the home in the same manner that radio now does. I am intensely interested in the future of Television and its possibilities, and think it is the ultimate answer to many of our entertainment problems."

Strangely enough, however, Fred Waring believes that Television will lead to an eventual return of interest in the stage.

And about Mr. Waring himself . . . particularly for the benefit of the ladies who consider him to be not only the busiest, but the handsomest orchestra leader as well—we'd just like to add that the reports haven't been exaggerated.

Violation of Corpse Linked to Maniac

Delanson, N. Y., April 17 (AP)—District Attorney Leo W. Bagley said today that authorities were hunting a maniac in connection with a mysterious fire and partial dissection of a woman's body in a grove cemetery vault yesterday.

He admitted that the case had investigators baffled. Deputies patroled the streets to quiet the fears of women.

The district attorney discounted robbery as the motive, since a necklace on the body of the woman had not been taken.

He added that a person of unusual strength must have handled the corpse, as the woman weighed about 200 pounds. The body, he said, was taken from its coffin on an upper shelf. It was found on the floor. The bodies of two men were on an opposite tier.

The fire, the district attorney said he believed, might have been set to "cover up" the other depredation.

Wrong Boy Felled By Poison in Food

Leesburg, Fla., April 17 (AP)—Police looked today to a chemist's report for a clue in a poisoning attempt which resulted in the illness of a high school student for whom the tainted food was not intended.

Meanwhile, Smiley Allen, student driver of a school bus, was relieved of his duties, officials fearing an attempt to wreck the bus.

Allen, 20, and Noma Cason, 15, left the lunches in the bus Tuesday. Cason ate the food, but Allen detected a peculiar odor and left his untouched.

Suffering serious internal burns, Cason was taken to a hospital. He was recovering today.

Sheriff Gibson said he planned to question the husband of a young woman with whom Allen had been friendly before her marriage.

TELLS COURT OF MANY AFFAIRS

had testified that he never loved the woman he first married, that he never lived with her as a husband and that while still married to her he had many affairs with other women—but not with the woman alleged to have stolen his love.

Wife Recalled

After his arrest, his first wife was recalled to the stand and questioned by Joseph Abrams, counsel for the respondent, concerning the arrest.

Q—Did you instruct your brothers to have Mr. Jaques arrested as he left the stand? (One brother, Lawrence Grennan, is now a Brokline policeman; another, Thomas, was formerly a Brokline officer) A—No, sir.

Q—You have no idea who told the Brokline police to have Mr. Jaques arrested? A—No, sir.

Q—Do you know anything about a charge that might bring about his arrest? A—No; that was the law.

Q—Did you ask your lawyer to have him arrested? A—No, I wouldn't need to.

Wives Watch

Jaques is a dark, handsome man with a throaty voice. He is now a real estate dealer in Yonkers, N. Y. The two women at odds over his love watched him closely as he testified.

Q—Did you love Louise Grennan when you married her? A—No.

Q—Have you ever had any love for her since your marriage? A—No.

Q—Did you ever have marital relations with your wife since your marriage? A—No, sir.

Q—Why not? A—My wife did not wish it.

Q—Were you involved in affairs with women from 1926 to 1930? A—Yes sir.

Q—On how many occasions? A—On many occasions.

Jaques' second wife is the widow of Karl Anthony who wounded her and killed himself in their Brookline apartment in 1930.

Jaques said he had never visited the Anthony apartment, which was in a building his father owned, except when Anthony was present. He sometimes went there to collect the rent, but was never alone in the apartment with Mrs. Anthony, he said.

Bares Parties

He testified that up to the time of Louis Amorosso's marriage in 1929 he and Amorosso were going "three, four, five nights a week" with different girls, and when Amorosso was not available Jaques would find somebody else for a companion, he said. Amorosso told of these parties yesterday.

Q—At one time did you serve two months in jail as the result of a complaint by your first wife? A—Yes, sir.

Q—From 1926 to 1929 did your wife ever show any affection for you? A—No, sir.

He went on to say:

"We were continually quarrelling because of my wife's frigid attitude. I was always being threatened with being thrown out by members of her family.

"I slept in a separate room. Sometimes I would wake up in the middle of the night and find my wife staring at me."

Q—Did your wife ever strike you? A—She threw an iron horse doorstep at me and hit me in the back.

Q—Did you have to throw pebbles at the window to get in your house? A—Frequently, to arouse my wife to open the door. Her family used to lock me out.

In 1930, he said, he attempted to bring about a reconciliation with his first wife. This was after they had separated, closely following the Anthony shooting.

He said his first wife stipulated that if they lived together again it must not be as man and wife, and that she must have $5000.

Asked about Mrs. Anthony's occupancy of an Auburndale room under the name of "Mrs. Jaques," Jaques said this was at his suggestion so as to avoid publicity resulting from the shooting.

He said it was merely a temporary home pending the readying of the Wayland house she soon after occupied—with him, according to the plaintiff's witnesses.

Before Jaques testified, Amorosso's wife, Mrs. Lilla Amorosso, of Huntington avenue, corroborated her husband's story regarding frequent quarrels between the Jaques and quoted Mrs. Jaques as saying she didn't dare to set up housekeeping because he was out every night.

Mrs. Jaques told her, she testified, that she once had to pay $150 for a girl to go to New York and have an operation. She quoted Mrs. Jaques as saying the girl phoned her and told her that Jaques was responsible for her delicate condition.

During the period when Jaques was having affairs with other women, Mrs. Amorosso said Mrs. Jaques told her:

"I have a boy friend who takes me to the movies."

Mrs. Amorosso went on:

"At one time Mrs. Jaques said to me: 'May I bring my boy friend to your house?' I told her I didn't think it would be proper. I said, 'Henry never brings his girls to the house'."

The witness said the plaintiff's conversation was spun around the affairs of her husband with others.

Story in Papers

She testified she knew nothing about Mrs. Anthony until the shooting, when my husband showed me the story in the newspapers."

Jaques, she said, always expressed a wish for a home of his own and Mrs. Jaques always said she'd be a "darned fool" to give up her family for him.

Jaques, on some of his little excursions with others, was followed by his wife's two brothers, both of them policemen, Mrs. Amorosso testified. One of the brothers is still a member of the Brookline force.

In the final arguments, preceding Judge Greenhalge's charge to the jury, Attorney Brown said Jaques' first marriage was a loveless one and his first wife never had his love, so couldn't lose it. He claimed no evidence of wrong-doing with his present wife had been introduced.

John F. Malley, for the first wife, argued that the plaintiff had proved Mrs. Jaques No. 2 had been intimate with Jaques while he was still the husband of No. 1.

Rescue League to Start "Cleanup"

Stray dogs on Boston streets are due for their annual chases and captures starting next Wednesday.

Agents of the Animal Rescue League will start their yearly pre-summer "cleanup" at that time, one which nets an average of 500 of these strays.

Owners must show a dog license at the headquarters, 51 Carver street, before reclaiming is possible. The drive reportedly aids in prevention of the spread of rabies.

SHEET OVER HARVARD

Prank 'Flag' Quickly Removed

A white bedsheet from a Harvard dormitory, intended for a flag and bearing the painted letters "V. F. W.," greeted Harvard faculty members and undergraduates from the lofty spire on top of Lowell House this morning.

But it didn't take very long to discover that it was just another student prank in connection with several rallies to be held next Monday in observance of Patriots' Day. These rallies are being sponsored by the Harvard post, "Veterans of Future Wars."

The "flag" was ordered removed this morning by Professor Julian L. Coolidge, headmaster of Lowell House. It was removed by Joseph Brady, janitor of Lowell House.

The students responsible for pinning the flag to the Lowell House spire had very little trouble in reaching the top. At present, workmen are repairing the roof of the dormitory and leave their ladders overnight near the building.

DEATH NOTE LEFT BY MISSING WELLESLEY GIRL

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

Shortly after she had received a mysterious phone call, 22-year-old Claire Parlardy (above), domestic in a Wellesley home, vanished, leaving a note which led police to fear she had gone to her death.

MAID Missing After NOTE

WELLESLEY MYSTERY

Some mysterious message that 22-year-old Claire Palardy received over the telephone during the night sent her, broken-hearted, out into the darkness—possibly to death—Wellesley police said today.

Before she vanished she left behind her a poignant note, apparently penned after the telephone call. Addressed to a Stafford Springs (Ct.) man, it told of her anguish at being separated in the future from the one she loved. One section read

"Barney—I hope you remember me in death as you did when you last saw me. Forgive me."

Henry Palardy of Stafford Springs, father of the girl, said today that his daughter had been friendly with a married man in Connecticut for several years and that the man had been warned to keep away from her, Wellesley police reported.

BURST INTO TEARS

Miss Palardy was employed by Dr. and Mrs. Edgar L. Abt of Hundreds circle, Wellesley Hills, and it was from their home she vanished after getting her "phone call and bursting into tears, police said.

Police later said they had received information that the girl may have taken a train out of Wellesley. She had instructed in her farewell note, they said, that money due her from the Abts for her wages be used to pay for telephone calls she had made.

Stafford Springs police teletyped to Boston and Wellesley a report that the "Barney" in the death message had told them he saw Miss Palardy on Easter Sunday, when she visited her family.

"She said things were not going well with her," the man is quoted as having said, "and that if they didn't get better there was a river near where she worked."

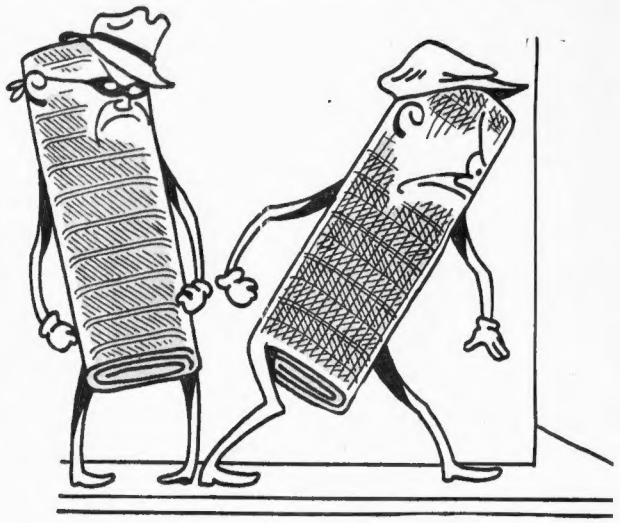
"The Cotton Gang" is at large!



REMEMBER the old bootleg days when "cutting" bottled goods was a fine art? Well, "The Cotton Gang" works in the same way. Only this bunch operates on fabrics—by mixing cotton with wool. For a while they kept under cover. But ever since the price of wool started going up, "Kid Cotton" and his boys are back on the job. And as usual, the innocent bystander gets the worst of it! ★ Sad enough, fabrics made of cotton mixed with wool look like the real McCoy. But what a difference, once you wear them! The least bit of dampness will curl and pucker them like an old dish-rag. The cotton shrinks, the wool doesn't! You can picture what happens when each tries to go its own way. ★ And if you ever get "hot under the collar," there's still more danger in store. When cotton absorbs perspiration it turns yellow. The result is not very pretty to look at, or to wear in polite society. ★ So, when you pick your Spring suit, beware of "The Cotton Gang"! Demand pure wool! One sure way to get it, is to buy at Bond's—where the fabric in every suit is put through the third degree, and is guaranteed 100% virgin wool. You'll get more wear and better appearance—at consistently low prices—$25, $30, $35 (two trousers with every suit).

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

An easy way to capture a good suit of clothes is to "charge it" the Bond way. This popular service permits you to pay weekly or twice a month. And it costs not a cent extra!

State Drops 2 School Charges

Brown and Frederick Carroll are alleged to have attempted to "shake down" Boston school teachers on the substitute list on promises that they would be placed on the permanent list.

INCLUDED IN CHARGES

Indictment charges against Brown and Carroll include the following:

Solicitation of Mary E. Brennan to offer a bribe; conspiracy to steal from Miss Brennan; conspiracy to solicit and procure money from unknown persons as gifts to school committee members, to influence their judgment; solicitation of Miss Brennan to offer gifts to the committeemen to influence them; eight counts of attempted larceny of $50 from school teachers, and conspiracy to commit larceny as the opportunity offered.

Prior to the ending of the government's case in the Devlin-Hawkes case, Attorney Herbert F. Callahan, counsel for Hawkes, completed cross-examination of Devlin.

The cross-examination was marked chiefly by a fruitless attempt by Callahan to draw admission from Devlin that he had received a promise before suddenly pleading guilty yesterday and turning government witness.

DENIES PROMISES

Devlin denied having been promised anything or that he expected anything. When Attorney Callahan asked Devlin what he expected as to the disposition of his case, Judge Dillon said:

"I don't believe he can expect anything, because I don't think he knows what I am going to do. You haven't talked to me, have you Mr. Devlin?"

"No, your Honor," Devlin replied.

Hawkes was called by Attorney Callahan as the first defense witness. The Jamaica Plain music teacher and his sister, Miss Esther Hawkes, were the only defense witnesses sworn.

Under his counsel's direct examination, Hawkes testified that he lives in Dunster road, Jamaica Plain, has been a musician for 30 years or more, has taught drums and tympani in Waltham, Medford and Quincy schools, has been vice-president of the Musicians' Union for seven years and for several years was manager of the People's Symphony Orchestra.

ACQUAINTED LONG TIME

The witness said he has known Devlin for a long time and was his teacher 10 or 12 years ago. He does not know personally Joseph Wagner, assistant music director in Boston schools, he said.

Hawkes charged on the stand that it was Devlin who instigated the alleged attempt to obtain $2000, and later the reduced sum of $1400, from Wagner as payment for the job as music director.

According to the witness, he was on his way back from Medford last September 28, after teaching, and dropped into Devlin's restaurant in Sullivan square, Charlestown, to enlist his support in Hawkes' campaign for re-election as vice-president of the Musicians' Union.

Devlin brought up the matter of Wagner and the appointment to be made in filling the vacant music director's post in the Boston schools, Hawkes said, and told Hawkes he believed Wagner would pay $500, or even as high as $1000, for the job.

"NOT INTERESTED"

"I told Devlin I wasn't interested in Wagner and I said I didn't know him personally," Hawkes testified. Devlin said, 'Well, if you can help out in getting Wagner this position, I'll see to it that you and I get positions as teachers.'

"I said, 'Jack, I'm not interested in the Boston school department.' Then we talked of other things, but Devlin came back to the subject and said, 'Jim, I think Wagner would be willing to pay $500,' and I said, 'Jack, I'm not interested in Wagner. All I've heard from you in the past 15 years is about Joe Wagner.'"

BRITISH MASS 190 WARSHIPS, ETHIOPIA SPURNS PEACE

London, April 17 (AP)—Britain raised the strength of its grand fleet in the Mediterranean to a new peak today, while British opinion, stung by renewed attacks from the Rome press, appeared to harden against Fascist Italy.

Fifteen new mine-sweepers were dispatched to Gibraltar to join anti-submarine flotillas already there.

Naval observers estimated that 90 British warships were now in or near the Mediterranean — the greatest number since the start of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict last October—although the tonnage was probably a little less than at the height of the Italo-British tension, late in 1935.

Naval sources said that several big battleships which had been withdrawn from the Mediterranean had been replaced by numerous vessels capable of coping with any submarine menace.

British sources foresaw stronger support for a stern policy at Geneva in the conciliation committee of 13's negotiations to bring peace between Italy and Ethiopia.

Ethiopia Spurns Duce's Proposals for Peace

Copyright, 1936, the Associated Press

Geneva, April 17—The Ethiopian delegation today rejected the mediation peace proposals submitted by Premier Mussolini of Italy to the League of Nations.

The rejection was described as "complete."

The Ethiopian action followed an Italian offer to let the League have a say right to keep constantly in touch with direct negotiations between the Italian high command and the Ethiopian government for a settlement of the war in East Africa.

Earlier in the day France had appealed to the Italian government to consent to a cessation of hostilities in order to permit peace negotiations.

Several members of the Committee of Thirteen, arriving for today's meeting, said that in view of Ethiopia's rejection, there seemed to be nothing to do except declare that conciliation efforts had elapsed.

It is the Committee of Thirteen, comprising every member of the Council except Italy, which is entrusted with the effort of bringing about a conciliation between the two nations.

The League announced, as the commission went into session shortly after 4 p. m., that it had received a cablegram direct from Addis Ababa in which the Ethiopian government declared the capital had been attacked by Italian airplanes, which fired on the city with machine guns.

G. O. P. REOPENS ONSLAUGHT ON BUDGET

Republicans, bound by a caucus pledge, and insurgent Democrats prepared in the House of Representatives today to renew their onslaught on Governor Curley's budget demands for 1936.

In the face of rebellion in his own ranks, Governor Curley expressed confidence that the items he favors will be treated more leniently when the budget reaches the Senate.

The $64,802,914.51 budget prepared by the ways and means committee—on the basis of the governor's original request for upwards of $78,000,000—was increased by only $412,390 in yesterday's debate.

"It is exceedingly unfortunate that the conduct of the activities of the state insofar as the Speaker of the House and Legislature is concerned should be determined on political lines," Governor Curley said when informed of the failure of the House members to grant his requests.

Speaker Leverett Saltonstall countered with a statement charging that the only place politics were being played was in the governor's office.

SALTONSTALL COUNTERS

"This budget is the people's fight," he said. "Maybe it has not yet reached the attention of the Governor, but it has reached the attention of House members that the people are sick and tired of waste and extravagance—at their expense."

The Governor's request for $56,400 for the executive office force was slashed to $40,640 when an amendment to increase the figure submitted by the ways and means committee was defeated 79 to 128.

The roll-call vote revealed 22 Democrats siding with the Republicans and 16 others among those not voting.

A request by Attorney General Paul A. Dever for a $17,780 increase over last year's appropriation was granted by a vote of 114 to 103.

The largest increase was a $350,000 item restoring step-rate salary increases for state employes.

City Plans to Buy Statue of Revere

The city art commission is at last going to take official recognition of Cyrus Dallin's statue of Paul Revere.

During the 50 years since the noted Arlington sculptor completed his work, the statue has at various times been rejected for municipal purchase.

Today, Mayor Mansfield announced that he and the trustees of the George Robert White Fund are considering purchase of the statue for $50,000, with a view to placing it in the North End Prado, where Paul Revere lived.

In addition, official programs of the Patriot's Day observance, released by Arthur J. O'Keefe, municipal director of celebrations, today, show a small drawing of the statue on the frontispiece.

It is estimated that the total cost of the work, including the construction of a marble base as a pedastal for the sculptured piece, would be $40,000.

Treasure Hunted In Old Factory

Ex-Preacher Faces Charge of Larceny

Attleboro, April 17 (AP)—The Rev. Frank W. Alexander, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mansfield, was arraigned today in district court on charges of larceny of $750 from Wilbur Johnson also of Mansfield. The case was continued until tomorrow.

Mr. Alexander was returned last night from Rochester, N. Y., where he was arrested two weeks ago.

Generosity

Los Angeles, April 17 (AP)—Mrs. Concha De Salvador told Judge Thurmond Clarke she was greatly surprised when her husband gave her the money she asked for, because he usually was difficult about such matters.

She was even more surprised, she testified, when she tried to spend the money—"I was deeply humiliated to find myself with only stage money."

She was granted a divorce.

Newell Asks Time To Win Back Loss

Worcester, April 17—"Give me two or three thousand dollars and let me out and I can win back what's missing from my accounts."

This was the amazing proposition put up by George H. Newell, 36-year-old Holden tax collector, sporting young town official who allegedly lost a fortune in town funds trying to make his own fortune at the race tracks.

And what is even more amazing, he may have a chance to make good on the proposal in an indirect way.

For scores of Newell's fellow townsmen are prepared to back him in an attempted "come back" and scores are ready to petition the courts that he be freed on probation as the first step in the "come back" program.

Should the court see fit to grant probation, these friends of the young tax collector believe he can start life anew, with their help, and make restitution of the missing town money.

Newell, it was estimated by authorities, was short about $20,000 when he vanished on April 4 and went to Miami, only to be arrested a few days later.

Far from being "cured" of betting on the horses, Newell is convinced that his system and his knowledge of how to pick them, is sufficient to clear him of the financial entanglements with which he was beset when an unexpected audit was started on his books at a time when he was short.

Among Newell's closest and warmest friends is the town's own legal advisor, Attorney Charles W. Proctor.

Although Attorney Proctor appeared against Newell at yesterday's hearing, he remarked to Judge Riley, who held the town official for the grand jury in $10,000 bonds:

"I have known the defendant for many years, and he is well liked in Holden."

Daniel J. Harrington, Holden selectman, who is nominally a government witness against Newell, is also among those ready to back the collector-prisoner.

"He's a white guy and everybody is sorry for him," Harrington declared.

WON'T EXPLAIN SYSTEM

Newell wouldn't explain his race track system, in which he has so much faith that he believes he could step out with small capital and win back $10,000 or $20,000. But he talked freely about how his troubles started.

"I was deeply in debt when I started taking the money. I had my house, and a mortgage holder was pressing me for the money. I just couldn't meet it. At the time, I was working in a Worcester loom factory, and when they threatened to attach my wages, I quit.

"There were other creditors pressing me. I had started playing the races with my salary money with the hope of getting enough to meet my bills. Then I began taking $10 or $20 from the town funds to quiet some creditor.

"That's the way it began. Like everyone else, I had every intention of paying it back. I didn't consider myself a thief.

"I took cash paid by taxpayers and then juggled the books.

WON $7500 AT 'GANSETT

"It wasn't until early in 1935 that I began to place large bets on the horses. At Narragansett I won $7500. At the time I owed the town about $9000. I went up to Rockingham to pick up the additional $1500, and there I lost practically all of the $7500.

"I went South to play the winter tracks, but didn't even get started winning.

"You can't appreciate the agony I lived through, not knowing whether I could get the money back to cover the shortage before it was discovered. It was just a matter of time. I wasn't surprised when the policeman put his hand on my shoulder in Miami and told me I was arrested.

"I knew it was coming sooner or later. There's no punishment I can take which can compare to what I have gone through during the past two years.

"No one who hasn't gone through it can understand the constant dread of being detected —of having the auditors come in and demand the books. When the auditors came, I knew I was at the end of my rope."

GEORGE H. NEWELL LIEUT. McCARTHY

George H. Newell, 36-year-old Holden tax collector, who allegedly lost a fortune in town funds at the race tracks is sure he can make a comeback on a new system of horse bets which he won't disclose. Curiously enough the town folk have faith in him and a number of officials are ready to back him. The young collector (seated), arrested in Miami and brought back to Worcester is seen with State Police Lieutenant Edward J. McCarthy.

KANE'S TO AID FLOOD VICTIMS

Losers by flood destruction in New England found their hardships lessened in large degree, in many instances today when Harry Kane, president of the Kane Furniture Company, operating 15 stores in New England, announced that Kane's would give a receipt in full for balances due on all household goods (other than electrical appliances), which were bought from Kane's and have been completely damaged by flood.

Electric refrigerators and other related appliances bought at Kane's and damaged by flood depredations will be restored to normal condition on notification to Kane's service department.

Mr. Kane explained the firm's policy as follows:

"It has long been the policy of this concern to please and satisfy our customers and to extend our aid to them in time of trouble.

"We are happy in this emergency to cancel the debts of our customers whose goods have been completely damaged by the flood, and in addition, will help all other flood sufferers with special credit arrangements to replace their losses."

Quake Rocks Greece

Athens, April 17 (AP)—An earth quake in the Epirus area of northwest Greece, terrified inhabitants today. A church was wrecked at Doveski, a gymnasium was destroyed at Devegiana and a school was shaken down at Georgiana.

Brown Snow Yields 4 Tons Of Western Soil Per Mile

New York, April 17 (INS)—In one morning, the "brown snow" that recently fell in New England spread nearly four tons of western soil over each square mile, according to weight tests reported here today.

How this "dust storm" silt, which wind and cloud had carried 2000 miles eastward, was extracted from the snow and measured, was told in "Science," official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dried and weighed in the laboratory of Dr. Henry I. Baldwin of Hillsboro, N. H., the silt from small sample areas was found to represent a deposit "roughly equivalent to 12 3-10 pounds per acre or almost four tons per square mile," he announced.

IDEAL SET-UP

Nature conspired with science to fix an ideal set-up for the measurements, according to the climate expert's account.

Four inches of light evening snow, crusted by the cold, formed a natural "dish" in which the dust was collected, as it came down early next morning—February 25—mixed with a four-fifths of an inch fall of sleet and hail.

"The hail had a distinctly brownish, purple color, and contrasted strongly with the pure white snow beneath when the crust was broken," said Dr. Baldwin. "Close examination revealed that the color was due to minute particles of soil.

"The day before, newspapers had reported severe dust storms in Colorado and other parts of the West."

To determine the amount of silt deposited, three sample areas, each 10½ square feet, were laid out on level ground 325 feet apart and away from trees or buildings, near Hillsboro.

CLEAN UTENSILS

"All the snow and frail showing discoloration was removed from the sample areas with a clean plate and placed in clean, enamelled kettles," the report continued. When melted, the resulting water was distinctly dirty and some sediment quickly settled out. Dark purple, oily bubbles were common on the surface."

LOVE ON A BUS BUMPY, ASKS ANNULMENT

Some swains propose marriage on a park bench. Others in the front parlor. But the man Mrs. Helen Hancock Hurd, 24, of Monument square, Charlestown, married, proposed to her the first time he met her on an all-night bus ride to New Jersey.

She sought an annulment of her marriage in Suffolk Probate Court today from Stanley N. Hurd, of Hackensack, N. J., whom she married in Haverstraw, N. Y., May 15, 1933.

Judge Frederick L. Dillon, after hearing her testimony refused to grant the petition on the ground that she had failed to prove her allegation of fraud in the inducement of marriage.

On the witness stand, Mrs. Hurd told Judge Dillon that she met her husband of one night on a bus.

"He proposed marriage and I accepted him. When we got to Newark City Hall, we couldn't obtain a marriage license as I did not have a birth certificate. So my husband said he knew a place in Haverstraw where we could be married. We went there and were married.

"Later we registered as man and wife at a New York hotel. The next morning he left the room, saying he was going to have breakfast sent up. He didn't send the breakfast up and he didn't come back.

Bride Brings Boy Friend; Divorce!

Hugo H. Bolin of Harrison avenue, South End, told Judge Frederick J. Dillon in the uncontested divorce session of Suffolk superior court today that after preparing a bridal suite for his bride of two days, she kept him waiting six hours and finally arrived arm in arm with her "ex-boy friend."

He was granted a divorce from Kathryn Williams Bolin, whom he married December 6, 1934. He alleged cruelty.

After the bride returned with her ex-boy friend, he testified:

"We all had something to eat. Then she left with the other fellow and came back about midnight. We lived together only five days."

Dorothea McKinnon Buck was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty from Floyd Wesley Buck of New York, public utility official, whom she married March 6, 1929. She told Judge Dillon:

"I wanted children. He did not."

Marcia L. Berry of School street, Belmont, a bride of four weeks, was granted a divorce for desertion from Jack H. C. Berry, a singer. They were married January 28, 1933, and he left her February 25, 1933, when she asked him to contribute to her support.

Mrs. Belle Rosencranz of Franklin avenue, Revere, was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty. She testified that her husband, Samuel, became enraged when she asked him for money and slapped her in the face. Except for $2, she testified, he never gave her any money

SHORT WEIGHT WELFARE COAL REVEALED

Deliveries of seven or eight bags of coal when 10 bags were called for, and deliveries of bags not as full as they should have been were common in welfare circles last winter, the Boston Finance Commission was told today.

Edward W. Hudson, South End settlement house worker, made these allegations at the third daily session of the hearing of the commission into complaints of alleged "fireproof" coal and charges of unreasonable delays in deliveries.

Hudson declared welfare recipients often had to wait from six to 15 days for their fuel at the peak of the winter cold.

MANY COMPLAINTS

He had never had so many complaints as this past season, he added, and he said he had seen himself coal that was "only slate and dust."

"In many instances, drivers refused to leave the coal unless they were paid from 50 cents to a $1 for the delivery," he told the commission. "And when the welfare recipients didn't have the money the coal would be taken away."

Patrolman John C. Cullen of Division 4 told the commission he interceded for an 82-year-old invalid woman, a welfare recipient, when coal was "so bad it wouldn't burn."

THREE DELIVERIES

He said three different deliveries of coal were made because of his intercession, but that each delivery was worse than the other.

"This woman was supposed to get a half of ton of clai. But there was so much pea coal and dust in it it couldn't be used. Because this women lived alone and was feeble I wrote to John C. L. Dowling, head of the overseers, and my letter was referred for investigation.

"A second half ton was delivered and this was worse than the first shipment.

"So I went to see the inspector and he called the Babcock Coal Co. The second half ton was removed and a third half ton was sent out. This shipment was practically all dust.

WATERED COAL

"It was soaked down with so much water that the water went through the celing to an apartment below.

"With the delivery of the third shipment, the driver became so mad at this poor, old coul that he threw the wirty coal bags on her bed which was in the kitchen."

The officer was followed by Representative James J. Riley of Charlestown, who testified that his constituents had complained to him the welfare coal was "like rocks", and that it was necessary to pour kerosene over it to make it burn.

700 Enjoy A. & P. Managers Banquet

The annual banquet of the A. & P. Managers Benefit Association was held last night at the Hotel Bradford. The attendance was 700, including employes and guests.

The honored guests, J. J. Byrnes, president of the New England division; J. E. Sullivan, superintendent of the North Side branch, and F. H. Smith, personnel director and New England representative of the Managers Benefit Association, were introduced by the toastmaster, Thomas Powers, president of the association. Other association officials included Albert Loud, vice-president; Arthur Ball, treasurer; Leo Travers, recording secretary; Patrick Foley, financial secretary, and William Murphy, sergeant-at-arms.

Transatlantic Stealing

Beauty's Tip Trips Bond Swindlers

New York, April 17—As a result of information from a beautiful Italian woman, American authorities, with the aid of the French Surete, today smashed an alleged bond-stealing gang, solving a $1,507,938 theft and unfolding a bizarre international narrative.

The official account of the investigation runs a fantastic course from murder on the lower East Side to the arrest of two men at a swanky sidewalk cafe in Monte Carlo.

On one of these men, $440,000 in stolen U. S. Treasury notes were recovered, according to the French Surete, the secret police of that country.

SEEK AMERICANS

These securities are part of $1,507,938 worth, stolen from the Bank of Manhattan Company here on January 28, 1935.

Only yesterday the authorities revealed the recovery of a large part of $590,000 worth, stolen at another bank a month earlier.

The State Department has requested France, England, Germany and Italy to be on the watch for an American and his wife, believed to be carrying $800,000 in bonds abroad for disposal, out of a third theft of $2,780,000 worth. The three thefts aggregate nearly $5,000,000.

The men arrested in Monte Carlo are Bernard Klein, 39, a native of Hungary, and his cousin, Jacob Schwartz, 33, a Czecho-Slovakian.

Klein said he received the bonds, which were found on him, from a hotel porter in Paris, but he admitted that they reached him as a result of an arrangement made with an American in Vienna.

The Prince of Monaco figures as an aid to the American authorities in the story, and, according to police detectives, the murder last summer of Anthony Pasquale, restaurant owner, also has a part in the case.

LEARNS NATURE

Miss Pia Ferrari Davico, wealthy New York woman, is said to be responsible for the original information leading to today's disclosures.

According to the authorities, an attempt was made to sell her $245,000 of the stolen Treasury certificates. She asked the advice of a broker and learned the real nature of the securities.

As a result of her story, it was stated, a man known as David Frank was arrested here March 31.

Detective Henry Oswald then began to gather information which led to the heart of the case.

He made inquiries of the American Express Company, which queried its financial agencies abroad, and the report came back that U. S. Treasury notes in large denominations were being offered for sale in Paris and Monte Carlo.

EVEN OWN YACHT

It was stated that three men and a woman, living with every sign of wealth, traveling in luxurious automobiles, and even owning a yacht, appeared to have a lot of securities which they wished to turn into cash.

The assistance of the French Surete was then enlisted and Oswald was advised to pay a visit to a woman living at a midtown hotel here and to a business man living on Park avenue.

The woman admitted acquaintance with the individuals under suspicion abroad and casually disclosed that she had also known De Pasquale, owner of a restaurant which police detectives frequented on the lower East Side. De Pasquale, mysteriously slain last July, was well acquainted with the bond suspects, she said.

FRIENDS APPROACHED

The business man stated that friends of his in Paris had been approached to buy $100,000 Treasury certificates.

A coup was decided upon and it took place in Monte Carlo, where French detectives, accompanied by officers especially assigned by the Prince of Monaco, seized Klein and Schwartz at the most popular cafe in the famous gaming resort. They were taken immediately to Paris.

The State Department at Washington, on request of Governor Lehman of New York, today asked the French government to be sure the two men are held until Detective Oswald arrives. Oswald is leaving for France by the first boat.

From Paris came the information that Klein alleges he got the bonds as a result of a conversation with an American in Vienna.

He said the American told of finding the securities. Klein said he was offered 40 per cent commission to sell them.

After his conversation in Vienna, Klein took a train to Paris, hired a suite of rooms at a quiet but expensive hotel and waited for developments.

Three weeks later a hotel porter handed him a package. In it was a fortune in U. S. Treasury notes.

After that, according to the authorities, Klein's task was to live as if he was a man of wealth, owning such valuable securities in his own right.

Speaking several languages, but asking to be questioned only in German, Klein claimed his ordinary occupation is continental representative for a London furniture concern.

THE SENATOR

New Up, Down Hill Row Near

THE SENATOR:

The Senator is muffled up to his chin and he has the sniffles and he is generally no bargain when he shuffles up the mahogany, and Timmie lets on that he is very touched over The Senator's condition, because Timmie is always willing to be touched by a condition even if not by sly wheedlings for a small loan.

"If it isn't that every time you come in, Senator, I hear your arteries harden," says Timmie, "I might make a wild guess that you fall amongst the mumps, which is a very prevalent affliction at this season for one and all."

THE SENATOR

"It is not the mumps, Timmie," says The Senator in a kind of foggy voice, "and for that matter I do not know what it is, but I will take something for it and you can name the shot."

"I make a wild guess, Senator," says Timmie, "that you are no more and no less than a victim of winter lingering too long in the lap of spring, which is no more and no less than a lack of warmth."

"I am very glad indeed, Timmie," says The Senator, brightening up, "that you remind me of warmth, on account of I have wrote here on my cuff a little item of warmth which concerns Dick Grant and Governor Jim and Daddy Grant and Mayor Freddy and which may pop any one of these days."

Up and Down Hill

At this perking up by The Senator, there comes a pause in Timmie's concocting and Timmie bends a narrow eye at The Senator and he says:

"Maybe you do not need this warming nourishment, Senator."

"You will continue with your profession, Timmie," orders The Senator, "because this is but a temporary surge and it comes from the excitement of possible complications which ensue when Mayor Freddy, who is no cheer leader for Governor Jim, possibly names James F. Grant, the Hyde Park Board of Trade member, to succeed the late Michael F. Brophy as city assessor. And this will make a very pretty scene indeed, with Mayor Freddy and Papa Grant lined up down hill against Governor Jim and Volnible Richard who are up on the hill."

"You are not dead, Senator," murmurs Timmie with a flourish into a glass. "You are only slipping."

"It is the truth, Timmie," insists The Senator, "and you watch the calendar as the leaves fall off. Something else you should also watch, Timmie, as the calendar goes by, is an announcement soon that Tom Dorgan of Dorchester, the representative who fathers the Teachers' Oath Bill, comes out for lieutenant-governor or secretary of state on the Democratic ticket."

"I hear something along the line of one of those jobs, Senator", says Timmie, "so do not consider that you are the only one with ears."

Dr. Joe Out Again

The Senator gulps quick at this and he looks at Timmie.

"I hear, Senator," says Timmie, "that Dr. Joe Santosuosso, who is Democratic nominee for secretary of state two years ago and comes within 10,000 votes of pinning Fred Cook, goes out after the job again this year."

"Oh—that!" says The Senator coldly, but it is easy to see that The Senator is merely being a hard loser. "I know that long ago, Timmie, and it is just that it slips me. But something you do not hear is that Chairman Joe McGrath of the Democratic state committee and Charlie McGlue and Joe Maynard, two former chairmen, get letters from the Republican Club of Massachusetts, asking for G. O. P. contributions. Chairman Joe says he will frame his."

"Well, Senator," comes back Timmie, "something else you do not hear is that Bill Healey, of Mayor Freddy's secretarial staff, may be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state auditor. You know Bill, of course, the former city councilor and Harvard grad."

HAVE YOU TRIED LA TOURAINE TEA?

WANT TO WIN TALKIE PART?

Chance for 200 in Production Here

Ever say to yourself—

"Oh, if I could only go in the movies?"

Well, this is the end of that "if" part. The chance is right here—if you are between the ages of 16 and 20 years, inclusive.

The Boston American and Sunday Advertiser and Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters are going to give young boys and girls of these ages a chance to be in a real, sure-enough talkie. It doesn't mean you are going to Hollywood—but Hollywood is coming to you.

A Hollywood director is coming here and bringing with him a complete staff of technicians, including cameramen, sound experts, lighting engineers, make-up artists—everything necessary in the production of an all-talking picture.

STARTS IN WEEK

The production is to start within a week or ten days from now. Upon its completion, the film will be shown for a full week at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, and following its showing here, will be sent to Hollywood, where it will be screened before various screen executives and casting directors who are always in search of new material for the screen.

There is no promise made, or implied, that any member of the cast soon to be selected will be placed under contract or sent to the West Coast. Rather, this is an invitation to get a taste of movie-making as one of the actors right here in Boston—then to see yourself on the screen, to hear your own voice speaking—to work under a Hollywood director, with a production staff in full action.

HIGH SCHOOL THEME

The local film will be entitled "It Happened in Boston" and will have parts for more than 200 local boys and girls. There will be a hero, a heroine and a villain, and a delightful little love story, with plenty of chance for action and for comedy as well. There will be ten leading roles or "bit" parts, and the rest will have the roles of "extras." "Bit" players are those not so prominent in the script but who have several small speeches.

"It Happened in Boston" will have a high school theme and story, and students of the city high schools are especially invited to try out for parts.

Players will also be accepted from school dramatic clubs, dramatic societies of churches, little theater groups and from any local amateur who thinks he or she has acting ability. There are sequences, of course that require special acting ability. But there are others calling simply for "types"—as one might be you. Who knows?

No definite selections will be made as to the cast until the lights and voice tests are held, and each person who applies will be asked to take the test. Actual production does not start until all the technicians arrive in Boston and the definite final cast is chosen.

GOT STARTS

A number of famous actors and actresses like Nelson Eddy, Myrna Loy, Eric Linden, Franchot Tone, Clark Gable, Margaret Sullavan and Fred McMurray achieved stardom after a start in small productions.

So here's what may be the chance of a lifetime—fill out the accompanying coupon and mail or bring it to Max Allentuck, casting director at Room 42 of the Lowe's State Theater Building on Massachusetts avenue between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 p. m. Casting starts today and will be continued for a full week with hours to be announced in this paper.

RESCUERS NEAR 3 IN MINE

Moose River, N. S., April 17 (AP)—John Hennigar, blasting expert, said today that one more blast will permit rescuers to reach what may be a clear passage to the 141-foot level of the Moose River gold mine, where three men have been trapped since Sunday night.

A big scoop crane was still digging out debris from a terrific blast at 2 a. m., which tore a hole in the shaft eight feet deep and almost 20 feet wide.

Rocks were hurled as far as the mine's bankhead, 300 feet away, by the explosion of a case and a half of dynamite concentrated in an area of eight square feet.

Work was also forging ahead on two other fronts but the concentration was on the Meagher slope, through which Dr. D. E. Robertson, H. G. Magill and Charles Alfred Scadding will be rescued if they are still alive.

It was feared that the three men—granting they were not killed by the cave-in—might die of exposure if they were not reached quickly.

'Meanest Woman' Nets Him 15 Days

Princeton, N. J., April 17 (US)—"Meanest woman in the world" w how Cecil Woodruff described h wife in police court here. Poi ing to a scar on his arm, he sai

"She gave me that one on our first wedding anniversary. An this scar on my head was the token of affection on our second anniversary. And last winter she even made me go out in the snow without any rubbers!"

Despite this, Magistrate Alexander H. Phillips, former professor of geology at Princeton University, sentenced Woodruff to fifteen days in jail, on his wife's charge that he abused her.

Untrained Test Twin Is Now 'Boss'

New York, April 17 (AP)—Johnny and Jimmy Woods, the "scientific twins," held a celebration today on the eve of their fourth birthday. And Jimmy boasted, "I'm boss."

Jimmy is the twin who received no special training during the scientific experiment in which the twins figured. Johnny was trained from birth, under the guidance of leading physicians and psychologists.

"I'm the boss. Isn't that right, Johnny?" the untrained twin demanded.

"No," said the scientifically conditioned Johnny; then, noting the baleful glare in Jimmy's eye, he hastily added:

"I mean yes, Jimmy's the boss."

Vermont Quarry Power Line Blasted

Rutland, Vt., April 17 (AP)—An electric line carrying power to the Vermont Marble Company's quarries at Danby, where work was resumed yesterday after a four-months' strike, was dynamited early today.

The LADY WHO LOST HER LOOKS

SHE could no longer deceive even herself. Now, she faced the mirror in that moment of sharp heartache that comes to many women . . . to some, years earlier than to others. She was getting old. Old! When she had every right to be young. But untimely wrinkles had crept over her complexion. Her eyes were dull. Even her smile was tired—as tired as she felt!

If women would only realize one little fact . . . simple to follow yet really important: The meals they eat day after day have considerable influence on how they feel and how they look. A poorly balanced diet, over a period of years, cannot help but show its effects on the face and personality. Leave adequate "bulk" out of the meal, for instance, and common constipation may develop.

Continued neglect of this condition causes discomfort, may lead to headaches, loss of appetite, listlessness. To be sure, the whole blame for poor complexions cannot be laid to constipation. Yet it adds one more handicap to happiness.

In Kellogg's ALL-BRAN you have a generous source of gently acting "bulk." Within the body, this "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, gently exercises and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and contains iron.

Scientific tests have shown that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a natural laxative food for normal people. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all"—but it does correct common constipation due to insufficient "bulk." Guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Serve as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into appetizing muffins, breads, etc. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity

Anne Cole and Thomas Gannett Entertain at Pre-Nuptial Parties

By BETTY ALDEN

THE STRAINS of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" rolled through the Blue Hills last evening and the echoes reverberated but did not deny . . .

Around the council fires of the Hoosuck Whistick Club, all the Stewart Tracy and friends of the Gannett tribe had gathered to drink a toast to Big Chief Tom Gannett, and to help him sing farewell to the freedom of bachelor years . . .

For Tom is to be married tomorrow to Anne Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Cole of North Andover . . .

ANNE COLE

While Tom was dining his ushers and a few out-of-town guests about twenty in all, Anne gave a dinner party at the Phillips Inn in Andover for about twenty six of her closest friends, her mother and future mother-in-law, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett of Milton . . .

Since the wedding is to be very small, with only families and intimate friends attending, Anne is only having hers and Tom's sisters as bridesmaids, and her guests last evening included some of the girls she would have chosen to be in her bridal party, had she decided upon a large church wedding . . .

Marjorie L. Saltonstall, Louise Harding, Barbara Kidder, Jane Ingle (sub-deb daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Ingle) Mary Rockwell of Andover, Virginia Chapin of South Carolina, who has come on from Vassar to attend the wedding, Felicia Lamport of New York and Frances Weeks are a few of the girls who drank toasts to the bride at her party last night . . . Her cousin, Barbara McKissock, is coming over from New York this afternoon in time for the large dinner dance Mrs. Gannett is giving this evening as the last pre-wedding celebration . . .

Wedding Ceremony at Andover Tomorrow

FERGIE LOCKE, Nathaniel Thayer Clark, Ladd MacMillan, Dick Dow, all of Boston, are some of the men Tom has chosen to usher at the wedding . . . the others include Robert L. Cammann and Charles Sargent, Jr., of New York, Fisher Howe of Winetka, Ill., Kenyon C. Bolton of Cleveland, Frederick S. Allen of Cazenovia, N. Y., and Richard Gannett Burlingame of New York, practically all of whom were his classmates at Harvard in the class of 1935 . . . His brothers, John D. as best man, and Robert T. as head usher, complete his list of attendants . . .

The wedding will take place at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon in the drawing room of the Coles' Andover residence and will be followed by a very small reception . . . Harriett Cole is to be maid of honor, Mrs. John D. Gannett (Martha Endicott) matron of honor, and Sally Cole, Dorothy Gannett and Eleanor Cole bridesmaids and flower girl . . .

A great many New Yorkers will be among the guests at Mrs. Gannett's big party this evening out in Milton . . . and among the young Bostonians present will be Olivia Morgan, who will soon become the bride of Alf Hallowell, Dorothy Harding and her fiance, Sam Calloway, Bettina Eshleman and Frank Reece who are joining their hopes in a fall wedding, and Gertrude McGinley with her new fiance, Peter Jay . . .

After their honeymoon, Ann and Tom, who are both very attractive and popular, will live in Milton . . .

Tea to Honor Recent Bridal Couple

THESE ARE CERTAINLY busy days in the Robbins family . . . Mrs. Chandler Robbins of Weston just came back Sunday evening from a winter vacation in Pinehurst, and has already made plans for a small informal reception in honor of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Robbins of Worcester, a recent bride and groom . . . The tea will be held on Sunday afternoon April 26, at Mrs. Robbins' home on the Boston Post Road in Weston . . .

In the Marlborough street Robbins' household there is also excitement in the air as Chandler 2d, cousin of the other bridegroom is the married the first week in May to Sarah Fraser of Morristown, N. J. The sisters of both these young men are popular, all round girls . . . Laura, of the Weston family, is quite an accomplished golfer, having won a number of trophies, and has, also, spent the winter in Pinehurst, a famous proving ground for golfers, she should offer pretty stiff competition to her girl friends around here when the golfing season rolls around later on . . . Her cousin, Celina, will probably have some fun dancing fluffy bridesmaids togs to be in the wedding party at Chandler 2d's marriage next month . . .

Mrs. Russell Codman, president of the Alliance Francaise, has arranged to give the members a little lighter fare than usual at the next meeting of the Alliance next Saturday, April 25, at 3:30 in the Empire Ballroom of the Vendome . . .

Instead of the usual lecture on weighty subjects, the audience will hear a program of French songs by Eleanor Seeber, accompanied by Miss Culbertson, then a one-act play will be presented with the following cast: Mademoiselle Arosa, Richard Wheeler, Robert Turner, Sumner Willard and Bruce Leighton . . .

PHILOMATHEIA POPS

Jolly Stunt Party Held at Chalet

JOAN FOX RUTH HARRINGTON MARGARET GUNNING

"FLOWERS FOR madame or for you, sir," might well be the salutation of the trio of Junior Philomatheia members who sold nosegays and gardenias at the club pop concert at the chalet last evening. Joan Fox of Chestnut Hill, Ruth Harrington of Somerville and Margaret Gunning of Ashmont are the attractive flower vendors.

NO matter what your preference . . . fencing exhibits, singing or tap dancing . . . the young performers at the Junior Philomatheia pop concert did their stunts with all the finesse of professionals.

Bud St. Pierre and Jim Carmody instructed the audience in the fine points of fencing and sang tales of all types . . . semi-classical, operatic or modern . . . warbled their prettiest.

Styles of Old

Virginia Grimes of Chestnut Hill opened the program with a set of classical songs and until Clare Nevilius capped it all with her "swing" numbers," nothing was missing.

Mary Snyder of Dorchester deserves a vote of thanks for her ingenuity in arranging the display of fashions of yesterday and today. Eileen Mullen and Larry Mullin stole the show when they arrived on a tandem . . . both in sport togs of the gay nineties.

A sweet girl graduate of other days was Sally Beck, complete with curls, hair ribbon and high-laced kid boots. An Easter parade of belles of the nineties featured Kay Forbes, Louise Connelly, Mary Malloy and Mary McCarthy . . . attired in basque-waisted gowns and hats flapping with ostrich plumes.

Mrs. Vincent P. Roberts watched her junior protegees' performance with great pleasure. Her print dress of dahlia tones was most attractive.

Chiffon Gown

Dorothy Cranneil arranged the affair and was most efficient in her role as chairman. Her black chiffon gown and corsage of gardenias were very smart. Catherine Curley, her assistant, chose a picturesque frock of black taffeta.

Watching the performance from a ringside table were Geraldine Fitzgerald of Cambridge and Jerome Moore. Gerry's frock of black crepe had crisp touches of white organza and her sister Irene chose aquamarine crepe.

Ruth Harrington of Somerville bustled about selling nosegays of bright spring flowers. She wore a soft gown of blue marquisette over a pink slip. Also selling blooms for the club's benefit were Dorothy and Mary Gunning of Ashmont . . . the latter in hyacinth chiffon and Mary, in a pastel lace frock.

Philetta Geary spent a busy evening supervising her waitresses who topped their somber black costumes with fluted caps and aprons of bright hues. Phil's black satin gown was yoked in pink chiffon.

Lucille O'Malley was smart in a street frock of printed crepe and the four Egans from Belmont watched the show with a great deal of pleasure. Kay's brown velvet skirt was topped with a gold lame tunic and Margaret chose black with touches of gold. Martinia was gay in bright green and Anne's frock was made of flowered chiffon.

MIRIAM DONALD LARRY MULLIN

IS ANY GAY nineties show complete without a pair of bicyclers? Miriam Donald and Larry Mullin of Cambridge reverted to other days to show the last word in sport togs at the turn of the century as a feature of the gay nineties parade at the Junior Philomatheia pop concert last night.

RECIPES Martha Lee LIKES

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

Fortunately, foods that bloom in the spring are a refreshing change from the heartier foods relished during the winter months. At this time of year appetites are apt to lag and need stimulation, and this is accomplished easily with these lighter, zesty foods. We immediately think of crisp and tender salad greens when we want to pep up a meal. And new suggestions and combinations are most welcome.

Watercress tossed together with dandelion greens, the small young sprouts, is the nicest we've had for a long time. This is a complete combination in itself or it may be used as a foundation with cucumbers radishes, carrots, finely sliced cauliflower, or beets added to it. Or slices of grapefruit or orange add a tang that is pleasing.

In choosing a broiler, even though it is the young chicken, be sure it is meaty and plump and the breast bone is pliable. Native fresh killed ducklings are slightly cheaper, 28 to 30 cents a pound. With broiled chicken use lemon as a garnish and serve fresh corn bread made from the whole kernels of corn. Baked tomatoes, with several asparagus tips placed on them, rounds out the meal. Top the asparagus with grated cheese and brown in the oven, or if you have a pet recipe for hollandaise that never fails, serve this (we have one, if you haven't).

There are many fish from which to choose, but at this season shad is of greatest importance. This fish is an epicurean dish and is not among the less expensive, so plan to give the family a treat when you serve it. The many small bones in this fish are a disadvantage but now market men will fillet it so that not a bone remains. And the roe, parboil in acidulated water and broil or combine in a sauce as in this recipe made at cooking school this week.

SHAD WITH ROE

Clean and split a three-pound shad or have the market man fillet the fish. In this way the many objectionable bones are removed. Place in an oiled dripping pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil until the fish is cooked, about 15 or 20 minutes. Parboil the roe for 8 minutes in one quart of water to which has been added one teaspoon of salt and one tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice. Broil as the fish. Or the roe may be parboiled and then served in a cream sauce with the fish.

CREAMED ROE

3 pounds roe shad
3 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon finely chopped shallot or onion
1½ tablespoons flour
1-3 cup cream
2 egg yolks
Salt, pepper, lemon juice
½ cup buttered crumbs

Parboil roe and mash. Melt butter, add onion and cook five minutes; add roe, sprinkle with flour and add cream gradually. Cook slowly five minutes, add egg yolks and season highly with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Remove shad from oven, spread with roe mixture, cover with buttered crumbs and return to oven to brown crumbs. Garnish with one-inch slices of cucumber from which the centers have been removed. Fill with pinapple wedges and insert bite of parsley around the edge.

Congress Lies Frocks Gauzy as Butterfly Wings

YOU'VE NEVER had as good a chance to go poetic in the evening. Better take advantage of it! There is propaganda afoot that emphasizes the importance of wearing truly becoming fashions and none others—Carmel Snow of Harper's Bazaar carries the banner for it. And sheer fabrics—gauzy and crisp, or clinging and floating—were never better style, and certainly are among the world's most adept flatterers.

For the clinging and floating angle—take the prevenche blue chiffon, left, modeled by Miss Catherine Day of Newton. Slim as a reed, it has a deep square front neckline bordered with a row of velvety violets, and a lyrically flared cape. And they say the hyacinthine shade, which is pervenche blue, is strikingly becoming to a peach-tanned complexion . . . to be remembered by girls who feel that brown and dead white have lost their wallop through over-use.

For the gauzy and crisp side—how about black marquisette over a taffeta slip, with an embroidered white organdy panel running from chin to toes, like the frock above, modeled by Miss Catolyn Pierce? There's amazing effect in the sweep of skirt, suddenly jutting from the knees.

Both gowns illustrated are Fashion Congress winners: for shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

CHAPTER XXIII

"THAT'S kind of you, but I've already made an engagement for dinner and the evening."

His worried eye fell on the bathroom sketch for the advertising agency. Whatever happened, he must get it there by seven, at latest, or he would be the loser by $30, which was unthinkable!

"If you would be so good as to drop me on West 45th off Broadway? I have to leave my drawing at a place there."

"Delighted," said Lorraine, rising. "Let's be off." They went down to the waiting car.

The chauffeur sprang from his seat and opened the door for them.

Jimmy hesitated for a moment. "Could you drop me just for a second at a house that lies directly behind this one? It's awfully hard to find and I'm not certain of the number." He looked at the chauffeur. "I can direct you as we go."

Then they were off.

But a traffic policeman stopped them at the intersection. "There's no left turn here." They had to go back.

"I'm afraid I've an appalling 'bump of locality,'" said Jimmy, distressed. To get to Luana's building from a different approach confused him. They had to drive all the way round the block.

"It's down a little lane somewhere . . ."

Lorraine laughed good-naturedly. "The old parts of Greenwich Village are like a Chinese puzzle. It's as intricate as round The Oval Curiosity shop in London."

But find it they finally did, at 10 minutes of 7.

Luana Gone

Jimmy raced up the stairs to the top apartment. His knock sounded unanswered. Luana must be long waiting for him somewhere. He turned back to the car.

The chauffeur was a fast driver, and a quarter to 7 when they drew up at the tavern on West 45th street.

Fortunately the cloak room woman was still in the office. She admitted that Miss Sayde dear, and he left his drawing in the appointed place.

Meantime, Mrs. Vandevere was wondering whom he had been expecting to see in the funny old tumble-down house on the shabby street.

A handsome hard up youth in Greenwich Village was one thing she might stoop to conquer, but to have some shabby, insecure girl, for a rival, was quite another pair of shoes as the French say. She would cure him of his infatuation, if it was that . . .

"I'll say goodby now and thank you," said Jimmy at the door of the limousine, hat in hand.

"Drive home with me and at least have a cocktail," Lorraine suggested.

He hesitated.

She took matters into her own capable predatory hands. "I'll tell you what we'll do. While we're having our cocktail at home, Lewis the chauffeur will deliver a message from you to the person with whom you had your appointment. Is that okay?"

It sounded feasible. She had been sweet and gracious to him, inviting him here with his drawing. All to mention scouring around Luana's building. To refuse would be churlish, so he got into the car.

Arrived at the penthouse, he wrote a note to Luana, asking her please to call him at the telephone number that, with the address on upper Park Avenue, was printed on the notepaper.

Lewis went off. Jimmy and Mrs. Vandevere went into the bar. Jimmy was angry with himself for not having let the latter know his appointment had been with Luana. But something held him back.

Jimmy Wonders

Subconsciously he sensed that it would be a wrong move for Luana that this woman who had helped give Luana her initial chance in the city niche in some way resent it, since she herself desired his company this evening.

He was in no way conceited, beyond what is natural in the healthy young male.

Good Manners

WIDOW'S NAME

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

After a woman's husband dies, should she not carry his name until death, or re-marriage? For instance, Mrs. George Brown, whose husband has just died, says that she should receive her mail as Mrs. Grace Brown and that she should always be referred to as Mrs. Grace Brown. Am I wrong in believing that she should be Mrs. George Brown even after her husband's death?

A. N.

You're right. A widow should use her husband's name just as she did before his death, unless she remarries. If she wishes to have envelopes addressed to her as Mrs. Grace Brown, it shows that she doesn't know what's what socially. When a woman is called a Mrs. a married woman, a widow, a divorcee—she should avoid as she would a plague, the use of her first name in her formal name. A married woman is Mrs. George Brown. A widow is Mrs. George Brown. A divorcee is Mrs. Smith Brown.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.

Fashion Flashes

THEY'RE printing everything this season, from shantung to jersey, and from crepe to linen.

Prints are slated for top position in the summer fashion rating and the newest arrivals are nothing if not original.

Small white horses prance over a dark brown challis background in one of the newest versions of the one-time unimaginative printed frock. Another, of silk crepe, sports sun, moon and stars of white against a background of navy blue.

Printed linens are emerging as one of the leaders of the summer style parade, shown both in frocks and blouses.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Copyright 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NOW that you are slim again you can go ahead and eat what you please—but you'll never stay slim that way!

You can keep your slim figure—but will you? There are perennial reducers who regularly lose 20 pounds a year and just as regularly gain them back with interest.

The final test of every reducing and figure program is keeping slim, and I want to help those of you who are slim to permanently establish your lowered weight level.

Of course, now that you are nice and slim again, you may think it almost impossible for you ever to have been fat, much more impossible that you will ever be fat again. Don't be too sure of yourself for you are not immune to overweight.

Any orgy of overeating to celebrate the end of low fat-reducing program is the best possible way to regain the pounds. Continue to use the daily menus given in the column as a guide for these menus are perfectly balanced for health.

On your keeping-slim program you may add from 200 to 400 calories to these menus. Make the calorie increase gradually until you reach the exact total which may be used without gaining calories.

By this time your calorie judgment should be fairly sound, and you will be able to adjust the calories to maintain a balance between calorie intake and energy output. When this balance is sustained, you neither gain nor lose weight.

Keep your appetite under control and it may be used as a gauge as to the amount of food to eat. However, appetite has played you false in the past and is not to be trusted implicitly. It is a good slimming rule to stop eating before you are completely satisfied. When you eat until replete, you have eaten too much.

The scales are your best friend. A three-pound advance in weight warns you that your calories intake has exceeded your activity. At first indication of weight gain, cut your calories to 1200 per day until the indicator no longer wavers.

It is twice as easy to keep slim as it is to get slim. In order to reduce, you must live partly on your stored fat, which limits your daily calorie intake to two-thirds your normal allowance. To keep slim, you need only limit your calories to the amount which covers your activity which will prevent storage of adipose tissues. You won't have to spend the rest of your life "reducing."

Your reducing struggles should be over when you have reached the keeping-slim stage and you can see it through this time by establishing habits that will keep you slim. More about habit tomorrow.

ADVICE on LOVE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Breakfast Table Quarrels Kill Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't be a tin saint.

Put more gold into your character and less lead into your gloves.

This is the advice I give today to a young wife who is wrecking her marriage by canonizing herself and bedeviling her husband.

Here is a girl, only 17, who puts on the robes of a martyr, heaps abuse on the man she swore to love, and prays for a divorce.

Her letter is interesting—so interesting that I am printing it in its entirety and awarding it the five-dollar prize for today. But her letter does not tell the truth.

And this is pardonable, for the odds are 1000 to 1 that the poor girl doesn't know the truth.

Nevertheless, I, who have received tens of thousands of similar letters, know that this girl, married at 15, has simply fallen out of love with the man she married.

His refusal to give her money, his intoxication, his quarrelsome attitude, and the other charges she makes are, in all probability, inventions of her own mind. Like many women who lack the courage to fight for love she wants a divorce and she doesn't care how she gets it.

If the young wife takes my advice, she will become the attractive, interesting girl she was before marriage. She will resolve to recapture the faith that kitchen and breakfast table battling has killed. And she will wake up to the fact that there are as many quitters in matrimony as there are in every other human endeavor.

There isn't a perfect man or woman in the entire world. But try to tell that to some wives. Putting to full use that marvelous, womanly ability to believe only what they want to believe, they gradually convince themselves that they are beings who couldn't possibly do wrong.

And the wife, no matter how clever she may be, who thinks that marital or any other joy will come of its own accord is bargaining for a lot of misery.

Here is five-dollar prize letter which inspired the advice I have given.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am writing you in the hope I may receive some of your advice.

I have been married for a little more than two years, although I am now only 17. I cannot get along with my husband. No matter what I want he refuses. And, though I hate to admit it, I realize now the horrible mistake my marriage was.

I have been abused and mistreated by my husband for no reason at all. He never takes me out, but goes out himself whenever he pleases. I have to fight with him for money for clothes, and it is very seldom that I get them.

Honestly, Miss Fairfax, my husband has turned me against all men. I just cannot stand him another month. Why, things are so bad that he even orders my girl friends out of the house.

A dozen times I have begged him to get me a divorce, but he refuses. And more than once he has threatened me. Nevertheless, I insist on a divorce.

What would you do? I have no one to turn to except you.

UNHAPPY.

Liquefying Cleansing Cream

POSED BY BETTE DAVIS

Milk of Magnesia Captured in New Form

By ARLINE GOULD

LIFE really does seem to grow more and more complex these days.

Although creams have been conceived in pretty near every form and material, they have somehow managed to stay clear of the medicine cabinet.

But not any longer. Milk of magnesia, long recognized for its antacid and healing properties, now pops up in cleansing cream form.

It's a light, liquefying cream which penetrated the pores, counteracts surface acid and acts as a soothing and healing agent to the skin. While the use of magnesia (used externally) for the complexion isn't anything new, it has never before been compounded in a satisfactory cream.

Stage and screen stars have long used milk of magnesia in facial packs to stimulate the growth of new skin tissue. The action of cholesterol—of which the compound contains generous quantities—is regarded as an ideal cleansing and healing agent.

We are told that before this cream was placed on the market, its makers conducted clinical experiments on hundreds of women.

In more than 80 per cent of these cases the creams had a marked healing and soothing effect and did not produce irritation in any case. These tests, however, were not made with the idea of promoting the cream for its medicinal value but merely for proof that magnesia was soothing and healing to the skin.

Hence this cream comes to you not merely as a curative agent—but as a help in caring for the skin and preserving its beauty.

If you would like to know the name of this brand-new milk of magnesia cleansing cream which is most inexpensive in price, call Arlene Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self addressed envelope.

CHAPTER 626

HARRY UNDERWOOD turned away as soon as he had delivered the hurried message from Hugh.

Ian gripped my arm again, quickly and then spoke casually.

"If you're going to telephone Sam," she said, "would you mind waiting until we put in a couple of calls?"

"Regular gumshoe you are, Ian," he joked, but there was no raillery in his eyes.

"I have to be," she retorted coolly as she moved past him to the telephone. "Put in your call first, Madge, but hurry."

I asked for Mrs. Tiger's number hurriedly, but I could not hurry my garrulous neighbor.

Even as she took up the receiver, she spoke from the corner of her mouth to me in a tone inaudible to Sam Brixton.

"Harry, Dicky, here. At once!" she said.

My impulse was to race down the stairs, but I controlled the impulse and spoke with apparent casualness.

"Excuse me, Ian? I have to see Katie a minute."

She nodded, and with a perfunctory smile at Sam Brixton, which cost me a distinct effort, I went down the stairs and toward the kitchen giving Harry and Dicky Lillian's message as I went. Then I scurried through the back hall and up the back stairs arriving at the telephone just in time to hear Lillian tell Philip Verlreen to bring over Mrs. Arlen and Avis within the next hour.

Sam Brixton hardly waited for her to put down the receiver before saying raucously,

"Don't mean you're to have that box opening in an hour? But you haven't the box yet, have you."

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

I was glad to see in a recent news announcement of the Federal Theater Works Progress Administration project a marked change in policy.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

By the way, I hope that "WPA" is right. The other day I received a courteous letter from an official source informing me gently that when I referred to an administration drama project as under the control of the PWA, I really meant WPA. Or maybe the other way round. I still am not really sure. It was stupid of an administration which depends so on the alphabet to choose such nearly identical initials.

Anyway, this announcement was to the effect that three drama projects about to be locally produced are light and entertaining comedies, among them Frank Craven's entertaining comedy "The First Year." Ever since these theater projects were mooted I have urged that the purpose be entertainment and not exotic art, radical propaganda, or mere highbrowism. "Valley Forge," living newspapers on controversial subjects, and nihilistic plays like Andreyeff's "Savva" have no place in such projects. Good clean comedies, not too difficult, were indicated and apparently have reached the point of production.

Recently a Cambridge project under Miss Lydia Walker staged "The Importance of Being Earnest." A bit out of date and precious, perhaps, for Cambridgeport, but certainly an improvement on the Flanagan-Motherwell policy.

We in Boston Know No Such Juicy Fare

But, bless you, we in greater Boston don't know from nothing! Only in New York does a critic have to deal with such juicy fare as that described the other day by Percy Hammond, the only man who refused to agree with his fellow critics in praising the gloomy and protesting "Winterset."

He had the ineffable thrill of beholding a WPA presentation of "Macbeth," played entirely by a colored cast. Now there is no reason why colored actors should not play Shakespeare. The difficulty seems to be that the authorities were really of the opinion that such a cast should not tackle "Macbeth" without certain very curious changes.

So the Powers-that-be transferred the locale of "Macbeth" from mediaeval Scotland to modern Haiti. Instead of the characteristic Scottish costumes, the tartan kilt and the sporran, the broadsword and targe, the dirk in the sock, and so forth, these actors were decked out in the gay draperies of the Caribbean.

"The tom-tom was substituted for the pibroch, the jungle for the heath. The secret, black and midnight hags of Shakespeare's poetry became voodoo priestesses, practicing the rites of West Indian aborigines."

This is plain proof of the fact that the Federal theater has fallen irretrievably into the hands of the college-trained amateurs who have gone nuts on novelties in presentation, the same kind of "serious students of the theater" who a few years ago were responsible for "Hamlet" in plus-fours and dinner jackets, and all that kind of nonsense.

De Luxe Boondoggling Mounts to Absurdity

Apart from the obvious absurdity of the whole proceedings we are also told of the lavishness, not to say luxury, of the back-stage staff of this "de luxe boondoggling enterprise." There are no less than thirty back stage experts, all presumably drawing down good boondoggling salaries: Managing Producer, Casting Director, Stage Manager with four assistants, Master Electrician, Master of Properties, Master Carpenter, Master of Scenic Construction, Mistress of the Wardrobe, Superintendent of the Display Department, twelve administrators—count 'em twelve!—four Treasurers, Experts in Voodoo Chant, and a Superintendent of the Chorus, not to mention, as H. L. Mencken once remarked, "the usual actors and strings."

Some of these, of course, are usual and necessary but the tout ensemble seems a bit exaggerated—at the tax-payer's expense. The cast numbers thirty-seven, every last character Shakespeare set down, and no duplications. Altogether a gorgeous and splendiferous presentation. I wish Boston might see it. If not that, at least a revival of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" laid in Lapland or Afghanistan!

Scrubwomen Get No Newton Raise

$800 VOTED FOR DOGS, HOWEVER

Newton board of aldermen today voted $800 to establish a dog clinic and turned down Mayor Edwin O. Child's request for a $1 weekly wage increase for City Hall scrubwomen, which would have amounted to $208.

The scrubwomen receive $11 a week. The mayor wanted to pay them $13. The aldermen voted 13 to 5 against the increase.

The dog clinic, also recommended by the mayor but frowned upon by the board's finance committee, was provided for in the annual budget by the $800 appropriation put in by voice vote.

The clinic will be established to immunize dogs against rabies.

Oppose Raise

The board finance committee opposed the $1 increase to the scrubwomen on the grounds that, although the mayor recommended it, it was not asked by the head of the building department, which employs the scrubbers, and no increase was asked for scrubbers who scrub in the other city buildings.

At its annual budget session lasting until nearly dawn, the aldermanic board passed a budget totaling $4,847,053.83 to be raised by taxes, exclusive of $246,276.56 for the water department to be raised by water rates.

Acting in accordance with the mayor's recommendation, the board abolished the position of director of social hygiene by voting no salary for the director, Dr. Ann Stewart. This position, created last fall, was opposed by the board of health.

$6000 to Pay

Against the recommendation of the mayor, however, the board provided for the $6000 annual salary of the director of public works, Richard H. Ellis.

The mayor, seeking to abolish the position, had included no provision for the salary, recommending only $3000 for the department. On this he will confer with the board Tuesday.

Most salary increases recommended by the mayor were turned down with the exception of the step-rate increases.

Also rejected was the mayor's request for three new policemen. The police chief wanted 12 new men.

N. E. Factory Heads Oppose Rail Rates

New England manufacturers will journey to Washington on Tuesday to register with the Interstate Commerce Commission opposition to an intimate continuation of the emergency freight rates due to expire June 30.

Extension of the present charges for one year only was proposed by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts at a commission hearing held yesterday in the Hotel Lenox.

In and Out

Moundsville, W. Va., April 17 (AP)—Lloyd Sines owes his freedom to the man who sent him to prison.

Judge H. G. Kump in 1930 sentenced Sines to 18 years for slaying his brother-in-law.

Governor H. G. Kump, in 1936, signed the order for Sines' parole.

NEW YORK GOLD RUSH

New York, April 17 (US)—The great Astoria gold rush went on apace today, as residents frantically spaded up their back yards in the hope of sharing the luck of Walter Muller, unemployed butcher who found traces of gold in his tonquil garden.

Irritated by all the excitement over his find, Muller dug moodily in his front yard gold mine, saying:

"So the assay man says my gold will run only $4.20 a ton, does he? Well, I will dig deeper, that's what I will do. The deeper I dig the more gold I will find. I just got to dig deeper."

Inside the neat suburban home, Muller's wife and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Frank Beck, chattered excitedly of the things they would buy when their gold mine got into real production.

Mrs. Beck regretted somewhat the destruction of her neat jonquil bed, where the sandy soil yielded the first flakes of gold ore, but she was philosophical, saying:

"I guess we can buy more jonquils, anyway."

Meanwhile Muller kept at his digging, and mentioned dynamite.

Mrs. Beck said:

"Next thing you know they'll be blasting the house down."

EDWARD VIII DISTRIBUTES ALMS TO AGED POOR

BY FOXLEY NORRIS — KING EDWARD VIII — ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY

Britain's king Edward carried a bunch of spring flowers as, walking between the Dean of Westminster, Rev. Foxley Norris (left), and the Archbishop of Canterbury he attended the Maundy Thursday services at the Abbey. This was but the second time in 200 years that a reigning king attended the services, king George, the present monarch's father, having attended in 1932. Edward himself made the presentation of alms to 42 old men and 42 old women.

Surplus Tax Hit From New Angle

JOBBING HOUSE CREDIT MAN CRITICIZES

Severe criticism of the proposed corporation surplus tax came from a new angle today when the credit manager of one of Boston's big jobbing houses.

For the past two weeks, executives representing most of the important phases of business and finance in Boston have levelled a continuous bombardment at the administration's proposed tax measure.

But the credit manager's analysis gave a new twist to the situation by showing a reluctance on the part of New England's small retail businesses.

First Inkling

He said:

"We act as a sort of paternal protector for our accounts, fully as much as we act as their jobbers, for if we protect them it is obvious that they will be better customers.

"Therefore, during the course of a year, we will analyze the statements, inspect the corporate structure and advise the treasurers of a multitude of stores, large and small.

"The first inkling we had of the way store operators would try to protect themselves from extinction should the surplus tax go through came when one of our accounts sent us a statement showing their surplus to have undergone a surprising shrinkage.

Salary Jumps

"Inspection showed that the president of the concern had drawn off an astonishing amount for salary.

"We asked him why, and he said he had not really been paid that much, but that he was trying to cover his surplus in the event of a surplus tax.

"We advised him to readjust his statement and make it correct.

"But we knew that the company's action was not as reprehensible as it appeared. He was hoping to enlarge his facilities and to grow with the needs of his community.

"He needed his surplus for the purpose. But should the proposed tax measure go through, his surplus would have been taxed to death that his expansion program would have died on the spot.

Credit Problem

"And then there is the problem of credit. Drain off the cash surplus of the small store, or place a tax on the store's surplus, and we shall have to pay it ourselves for them.

"Their cash comes from selling goods, and we supply those goods. We'd have to ship them, and carry them 'on the books.'

"And then, since we are a corporation, too, we'd have to pay a tax on our surplus, which would be largely our accounts receivable, represented by the amounts these stores owed us for the goods.

"I can see only what a credit stringency would result throughout the country."

"We think the corporation surplus tax would be dynamite no matter how it should be drafted for that reason, and for many others, most of which your paper has quoted Boston businessmen as expressing.

"We think it should be abandoned."

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

Being the official Prince Charming on a junket taking 200 or 300 New England women South, requires a healthy sense of humor. John A. Foote has what it takes. He's New England passenger agent for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

It's rather necessary that the ladies have a sense of humor, too. Mr. Foote is 33 years old. He became passenger agent eight years ago. In those eight years, he has conveyed hundreds of women to Washington's cherry blossom time, and conducted a number of other tours, reaching farther into Dixie. Most of the trips last six or seven days. Most of the ladies are club members and, as a rule, he's the only man in the party.

Usually, the excursionists go by boat to New York and entrain there for the Capital. Long before the boat leaves, Foote's job begins.

He counsels the ladies on the right sort of clothes to take along . . . gives brief histories of the chief points of interest . . . advises them as to what special diets may be procured on the trip.

Once on the boat, he becomes a sort of master of ceremonies . . . rounding up the luggage of the customers . . . telling them where the boat is now . . . how long before they'll be in . . . taking turns dancing with them.

Mr. Foote finds the women who go on his personally conducted tours are good travelers and good sports.

As each boatload puts out, husbands of the club ladies board the boat tell him about the peculiarities of their wives diet . . . what they should and shouldn't do . . . their need of wearing heavy wraps when the nights are cool. The women bask in these husbandly attentions, but pay no attention to them when the boat leaves and the picnic begins!

Society Women Best Volunteer Press Agents

Society women seem to take naturally to publicity promotion. Some of the best volunteer press agents in town are in the upper social brackets. They handle the job with professional dependability.

Mrs. Leslie B. Cutler does publicity for the Women's Republican Club; Mrs. Wilbur S. Grant writes releases for the Christopher Shop; Mrs. Henry McBurney Parker handles press for the Vincent Club; Mrs. Rogers Dow performs the same service for the Harvard Women's Club; Miss Marion Lattie is publicity director for the Junior League.

Chinamen are what sports writers call "push-overs" for the sidewalk photographers. Jacob Bernstein is your authority. He's been taking pictures outside one of the Charles street entrances to the Public Gardens for upward of a dozen years.

He says a Chinaman with a child never escapes him. Next easiest prospect is a boy with a girl.

Another thing: Girls sometimes get their pictures taken when alone. Boys and men never do. Most men are very self-conscious while posing in the street. Women have much more independence. If they want to be photographed, they do it, if all the world is looking on and snickering.

"Come to think of it," says Bernstein, "I never knew a woman who didn't think she'd take a good picture. A good many men have doubts about it."

A new parking game has been introduced in Boston. Take a drink each guest to: Light a match . . . drink out of a glass . . . look across the room . . . look at lips or her nails.

Purpose is to find out if the subject is predominantly masculine or feminine. Thus, a man is supposed to scratch a match towards him . . . look into his glass while drinking . . . stare directly when told to look across the room . . . cup his hand to look at his fingernails.

According to the originators of the pastime, a truly feminine woman scratches a match away from herself . . . looks over the rim of the glass while drinking . . . lets her glance wander when told to look at something . . . raises her whole hand to inspect her nails. Some amusing results are reported by addicts.

National League's Prexy Caught in Own Mousetrap Law

WHAT WITH THOSE FIST FIGHTS between the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers and his new law which imposes money fines on rival players who grip hands, exchange talk or commit overt acts of friendship on the ball field, it looks as though Mr. Ford Frick, the National League president, has been caught in his own mouse trap.

Austen Lake

This raises a delicate question by which Frick, in fining Van Mungo, the Brooklyn pitcher, or Dick Bartell, the Giant shortstop, $25 each for swapping punches in plain view of the Polo Grounds crowd, chills the spirit of his other rule, which aimed to promote hostility between the teams and enhance the theory that baseball clubs are not just commercial firms, run for gain, but antagonistic factions warring for the glory of their towns.

Frick has pointed out that the sight of rival players chumming around the park upsets the customer's notion that they can be sincere in their enmities during games. He thought if the men horsed around before the contests it put too much pressure in the people's imagination to see them as their faithful champions or anything but tramp athletes who might switch uniforms and loyalties between innings and pass into the pay of the enemy.

FRICK MAKES PUNISHMENT SMALL

FRICK SAID IT WAS HARD enough for the home customers, unless he paid close attention to the trading around of his idols, to know offhand whether to cheer or boo a given ball player during games between, say, the Bees and Dodgers or the Cincinnatis and Cardinals. So he told his umpires to keep their eyes skinned carefully and snitch on any athlete who borrowed a morsel of sucking tobacco in an alien dugout, or chirped any fraternal nothings to an old team companion who had turned renegade by moving into the other camp.

So it is ungrateful now for him to punish Mungo for trying to brain Bartell with a bean ball or Bartell for attempting to knife the pitcher with his spikes, or both for rolling on the ground. This merely stretched the intent of Frick's anti fraternizing rule past the point of illusion into reality and therefore should win them letters of praise for their dashing initiative instead of $25 assessments, which are the smallest rebukes of their kind levied in many years.

BEAN BALL LAW

THERE IS ANOTHER TROUBLESOME law connected with this incident which Frick ignored in placing his fines—the one forbidding pitchers from throwing the pernicious bean ball, as the custom of firing straight at the batter's head for purposes of intimidation, is called.*

This was written into the book more for moral restraint than any hope of having it invoked by the umpires, who are never able to say whether a pitcher is attempting to dust the batter off intentionally or whether the pitch results from honest lack of control. The matter has always been allowed to rest between the pitcher, his pastor, or any other confessor, as a secret in his soul.

Frick assessed no extra fine against Mungo for trying to skull Bartell. By use his actions assailing themselves of the human right to doubt, read Mungo's intent as strictly virtuous, and the president of the league did interpret it the same way. Thus Bartell, getting no justice from the law, took his own hands and attempted the old rough stuff. It has been better in cases of this kind.

BARTELL'S SCHEME

BARTELL DRAGGED MUNGO'S next pitch toward first base, bunting the ball just wide enough of the bag to force the pitcher, as his duties require, to dash over to cover. He hoped, at the exact moment when ball, pitcher and runner arrived, to sink his sharp, steel, chisels into Mungo's instep, performing his wickedness in the swift confusion of the moment.

Like Mungo with his beanball, it was Bartell's right to deny this as a premeditated plan, to insist that the pitcher was victim of his own awkwardness, and allow the suspicions to rest not so much disproved as that they could not be proved.

As it happened the plan went wrong and Mungo spilled Bartell with a neat twist of the hip. So the $25 fight was on.

LIKE F. D. ROOSEVELT

THE SPORTS BUSINESS RAISES many showerbath lawyers who claim all and admit nothing. It is nearly impossible to trace the wavering hairline which separates honest from heinous intent. Thus no umpire could testify that Mungo's pitch was anything more maliceful than a slip of the wrist, or that Bartell's heart held mayhem or anything more sinister than sporting abandon.*

In his indignation against Mungo, Bartell did not come into court with his own hands entirely clean, for he enjoys some stigma for wounding Joe Judge and Jimmy Frey of the Brooklyns a few years ago when he was with the Phillies. He never drew any such penalties for either act and it may be that Mungo set to smouldering over an old injustice and, on the impulse of the moment, let go his duster.

To come back to my original theme, it is likely that Frick, like Franklin D. Roosevelt, is an inexperienced and novice executive, whose laws sometimes snap back and have to be unmade. Or that his policy, like Roosevelt's, is to keep or, trying something for the sake of seeming active, which if it doesn't work, can be substituted for something else, equally theoretical. The only sure thing about both is they cost people money.

INJURY

NOT FATAL TO CLUB'S CHANCES

By Joe Cashman

New York, N. Y., April 17—Our Red Sox will line up back of Robert Moses Grove with McNair at short, Werber at third and Almada in right field, when they meet the Yankees in New York's American League opener today.

This was Manager Joe Cronin's decision as he resigned himself to three weeks or more of bench managing.

A splint, almost as large as a bat, covers the thumb he broke in two places in the Thursday tilt with the A's at the Fens.

The Cronin injury and the resulting changes in the Fenway front was the big news here, forcing the scribes on Metropolitan dailies to rewrite their inaugural stories and bury the details of the lid-lifting ceremonies.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that the loss of the $250,000 boy pilot won't seriously weaken Boston's million-dollar pennant hopefuls. And there doesn't appear to be any reason why it should.

GAIN BY SHIFT

McNair, a natural shortstop, is better in that spot than at third Werber is much more at home at third than he is in the outfield And Almada is certainly superior to Werber as a fielder in the sun garden

As we look at it, the team gains a speed, and isn't weakened defensively. It will suffer somewhat offensively but that doesn't look like anything to worry about when we have such sluggers as Foxx, Manush Cramer, McNair and Werber knocking the cover off the apple.

Cronin, himself, feels the same way about it.

"My absence from the lineup won't hurt us a bit," he opined.

"It may help. I wasn't being of much assistance, either afield or at bat. Naturally, I wish it hadn't happened, but it may prove to be for the best."

This is the third mishap the boy boss has suffered in as many seasons. He broke his wrist in August of 1934, while managing the Senators, and was out of action for the remainder of the season Early last year he sustained a foot injury which kept him on the bench for a spell and handicapped his play all season.

The other two blows were ruinous to the pennant chances of Joe's respective clubs. This one doesn't figure to be, thanks to the presence of little Eric McNair and Billy Werber's complete recovery from 1935 ailments.

With their new lineup, which has Almada batting in the lead-off spot, McNair fifth and Werber sixth, the Sox enter their first real engagement still untested.

MUCH POWER

They showed plenty of power while romping the lowly A's twice but the pitching they faced was nowhere, while their own pitching and fielding, to put it most gently, was nothing to write home about in either game

They'll receive their first acid test in the two games they have carved up at "the house that Ruth built," but where he doesn't live any longer.

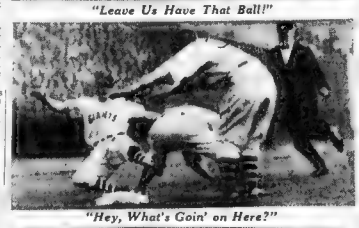
The Yanks haven't been too hot to date, having dropped their opening series with the Senators down in Washington, but Marse Joe McCarthy has a powerful machine that is sure to be a prominent flag contender.

Manager McCarthy is expected to start Big Charlie Ruffing, former Fenway ace against the Crosinless Cronimen. It will be the season's first start for "Ruff," as well as for Grove.

There's no love lost between the two teams; neither between the owners nor the players. The predicted 40,000 opening-day crowd may see some battles not on the program.

"Come On. Hit the Dirt Fellah!"

"Leave Us Have That Ball!"



"Hey, What's Goin' on Here?"

"Whoops! Here's Little Me!"

"Tag! You're It Mr. Whitehead!"

"What D'yah Mean, He's Out?"

THE MAGIC EYE tells the story of a play in the Giants-Dodgers series. Burgess Whitehead tries for third base while Dodger Jimmy Bucher attempts the putout. Coach Frank Snyder and Umpire "Beans" Reardon also take part.

TODAY'S OPENING TILT WILL DRAW NOTABLES

at least the odd game, the Bees will meet with the approval of the local fans

In the first place, Manager Bill McKechnie is piloting a bunch of hustling youngsters From the oldest veteran to the youngest rookie on the Bees' roster, baseball is a serious business.

Since President Bob Quinn took over the office, the Bees have been noticeably strengthened. Although they have been working for him for less than two months, the players realize that Bob Quinn is a square shooter, under any and all conditions, and an ideal boss

With the exception of the pitching corps, the Bees have strengthened in the key departments

Tony Cuccinnello will be the fair haired boy with the Gaffney street fans. Few of even the closest followers of baseball, in my opinion, really appreciate the remarkable all around ability of this ex-Dodger.

Tony is simply bubbling over with the old intestinal fortitude. Right now there isn't an inch of skin on his right hip, still he continues to hit the ball on close plays or whenever an opportunity presents itself to take out an opponent, who's trying to complete a double play.

Another new regular who can't miss becoming a favorite with the Bees fans is Gene Moore, the little outfielder acquired from Brooklyn. Gene is a natural. He's a son of Gene Moore, the old Pittsburgh southpaw hurler, and he's as quiet as his dad was boisterous. This youngster is fast afield and on the bases On his form, he can't miss as a hitter.

With Tony Cuccinnello to port, Bill Urbanski should enjoy his best season in the National League. He's missed only one chance out of 18 and is hitting for .417

BERGER BETTER

Minus the worries of unfulfilled promises, which have had him down for a couple seasons, Wally Berger will be a greater asset than ever. Already he has connected with one home run, a mighty drive into the far away left field bleachers in Baker Bowl

As to the ability of the pitchers, it's too early to boost or condemn the talent.

Danny MacFayden had one bad inning during the opening game and the Bees lost the decision Ben Cantwell didn't have his control in the second game and was obliged to retire in favor of Ray Benge, who went through like a major Yesterday, Christy Mathewson in his palmy days could not have stopped the Phillies with the wind blowing a gale toward that short right field wall. And, Jim Chaplin should not be judged too harshly for allowing 10 hits in six innings, for seven of them were made by left-hand hitters, who had only to start the ball on its flight and the wind would carry it against the wall, or over it.

Despite the fact they lost two verdicts in Philadelphia, the Bees are a better club than the one Jimmy Wilson is trying to keep from holding up the National League and still more important, the Bees will be a better club as the season progresses. When the final curtain descends there'll be at least two, and possibly three, clubs with a lower average than Bill McKechnie's charges

Speed Up Ball Games!

Umpires at American and National League ball games in this city should be ordered by league executives to speed up the contests.

The two games which the Red Sox won from the Athletics were slow, dreary affairs. The pitchers at times appeared like characters in slow movies. One of the Athletics pitchers in the opening game was so slow in throwing the ball that one grandstand fan demanded to know what he was posing for.

When Ban Johnson was president of the American League he demanded a report from the umpire-in-chief in all cases where a ball game lasted more than two hours. Johnson knew that the fans did not want long, drawn out games. He built the American League on speed.

Let the American League umpires return to the old order of things. Make the pitchers and other players show signs of life when on the playing field. The public will be better satisfied with fast, snappy ball games, and will not have to leave the park in the fifth or sixth inning as has been the case this week.

The Bees have been playing their games in shorter time than the Sox, but they, too, can show improvement.

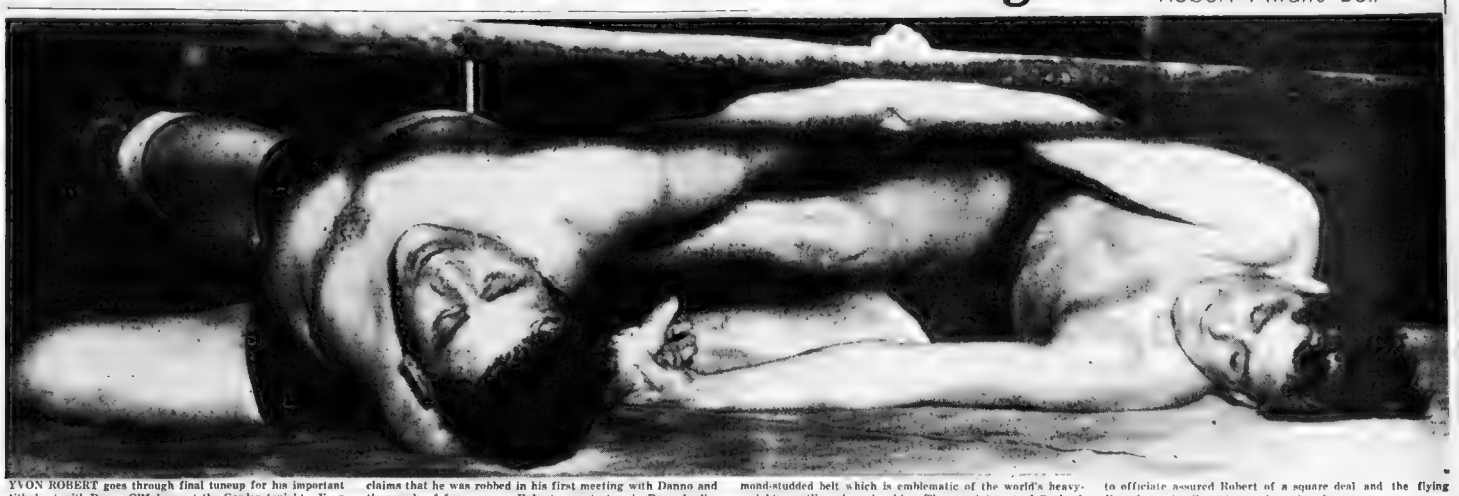
Durable Danno Meets Irate Yvon Tonight

Yvon Ready to Go

Robert Awaits Bell



YVON ROBERT goes through final tuneup for his important title bout with Danno O'Mahony at the Garden tonight. Yvon claims that he was robbed in his first meeting with Danno and thousands of fans agree. Robert expects to win Danno's diamond-studded belt which is emblematic of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship. The appointment of Burbank to officiate assured Robert of a square deal and the flying Frenchman is all set to go places in a big way.

Danno's Diamond Belt at Stake

By Jack Conway

Danno O'Mahony's title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion and his $10,000 diamond studded belt will hang in the balance when he clashes with Yvon Robert, French Canadian heavyweight, in a finish bout at a Paul Bowser show at the Garden tonight.

Betting is even on the clash between the mat kings. Each is in excellent condition and prepared to set a terrific pace from the start.

Leon Burbank, dean of American wrestling referees, who has licenses to officiate in almost every state, will be the third man in the ring. He was the selection of the American Wrestling Association after O'Mahony and Robert were unable to agree on a referee.

Burbank's presence in the ring assures both O'Mahony and Robert fair deals.

GREAT INTEREST

There is intense interest in the championship match, and it is expected that a near capacity crowd will see Danno and Yvon in action.

Sixty per cent of the receipts of tonight's show will go to the winner. O'Mahony and Robert agreed to battle on a winner-take-all basis.

It will be the second tussle between O'Mahony and Robert. In their first bout, O'Mahony was declared the winner. Danno scored a fall in the early stages of the tussle. The men then went two hours without either being able to count with a fall.

Robert insists he pinned O'Mahony at least 15 times, but he declares Referee Ted Tonneman gave him a raw deal and wouldn't allow a single fall. It was a result of Robert's protest that Tonneman was barred as referee from tonight's bout.

O'Mahony is a trifle taller than the challenger, also heavier. Robert, however, is faster than the powerful Irishman, and also knows more wrestling holds.

GRUDGE MATCH

Robert did his early training for the bout in the Canadian wilds while O'Mahony was at Jack McGrath's camp at Lake Quinsigamond for several days. The two heavyweights moved into Boston where they finished their training.

There is unusual bitterness between O'Mahony and Robert. Their feud dates back to the night at Holyoke when Robert hopped into a ring where Danno was wrestling and pinned the champion in an impromptu match.

In the semifinal, Rudy Dusek clashes with Henri Piora while other bouts will include Tommy Rae vs. Nick Lutze, Rudy Ladig vs. Joe Norocki, Jack Washburn vs. Dom Petroff, Al Mercier vs. Charley Strack, and John Spellman vs. Carl Stringari.

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield has promised to make every effort to be present to make personal presentation of his own trophy donation and the many other valuable prizes as well.

All prize winners who can be present are asked to do so. Others who may find it hard to come from far out-of-town will receive their prizes next week.

The awards will be made at the fifth floor bowling headquarters, 63 Summer street, Boston.

In the meanwhile the three roll-offs necessitated by top ties will also take place, starting if possible at 5:30 in the afternoon.

Joe Grant of Roxbury and Matty Swanson of Quincy are due to battle it out over the three string route for the Friday, April 3, daily prize, the George V. Brown Trophy.

Kay Grant of Quincy and Marion Jackson of the John Hancock, tied at 312 as high scoring women in mixed doubles competition, will clash to decide the final possessor of the Rulon wrist watch donated by Rogers Jewelry Company.

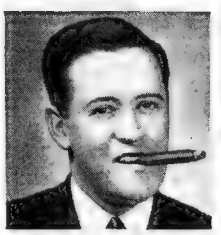
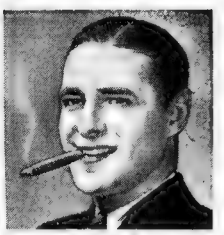
NOW THEY KNOW WHY MORE MEN SMOKE IT!

Like most smokers, I don't enjoy any cigar that doesn't have Havana. Was astonished to find it in PHILLIES for sure. It suits my taste better than the more expensive cigars I've smoked.



I smoke a cigar for just one reason—the genuine pleasure it gives me. PHILLIES has a distinctive Havana flavor—delightful aroma—is mild—and doesn't bite my tongue.

After smoking my first PHILLIES, I was afraid I wouldn't find the next one as good. Have since found every PHILLIES the same cool, mild, sweet smoke from end to end.



I shifted from one 5¢ cigar to another for several years—but now I'm through. I've discovered PHILLIES! It's the mildest and most enjoyable cigar I've ever smoked.

If you enjoy a good cigar—and haven't tried PHILLIES—consider this important fact: More men smoke it than any other cigar in America.

The reason? Simply this. PHILLIES is a mild cigar—but with a smooth, mellow, satisfying flavor. It has no bitter, biting taste when half smoked . . . no ashes dropping with each puff . . . no loose ends coming out in your mouth.

It takes good tobaccos to make a cigar like this—and PHILLIES has them . . . the mildest of ripe, fully-mellowed, Long-filler Havana and Domestic. No "green" tobaccos—no short-fillers or scrap tobaccos—are ever used in this fine cigar.

Millions of men say PHILLIES is the most enjoyable cigar they have ever smoked—regardless of price. We believe you will, too. Try it.

FREDDY Makes Own TERMS

New York, April 17 (17)—Casey Stengel and Umpire "Beans" Reardon fired at each other throughout the Giant-Dodgers' series.

One of Stengel's quips was: "You would be a fine asset to baseball if you had stayed in the movies."

When Bill Terry removed Freddy Fitzsimmons from the 21-a-year list, he handed Freddy a blank contract and told him to fill it out for what he wanted . . . Freddy did, Terry said OK and the Giants had another contented athlete . . . Topsy for the fights at Ebbets field this summer will be $5 . . . And those prices will hold for any title bouts, also.

Ox Eckhardt and Danny Taylor, Dodgers outfielders, were born on the same day of the year . . . This Leroy Haynes must have something, at that . . . Remember, Nate Brown stacked 'em [illegible] with Joe Louis . . . Old Timers say Tommy Baker, Dodger coal pitcher, is a dead ringer for Smoky Joe Wood ex-Red Sox star and now baseball coach at Yale

Mike Brady offered to commit hari-kari if Babe Dahlgren didn't drove him . . . On the first tee, after the drives a wag handed Mike a jackknife with the blade open . . . The Babe collected 14 smackers off another long main driver, one buck for each hole on which she whanged a sweet ball.

There were four par three holes on the course . . . The Dodgers [illegible] Lowell Joe St. [illegible] to the Cards for $10,000 . . . Joe Stripp's top was $4000 . . . I believe he'll be worth a lot of that."

Leonard Gette son of North Long Branch N. J., comes on with some nice opening day records. For instance Bill Rogers, Tiger shortstop went through the opener without getting a chance in the field

Ed Morgan of the Cardinals made his first major league homer on his first time at bat while acting as a pinch hitter . . . First time on record that was ever done in a big league opener . . . And Bill Herman of the Cubs equaled the record set in 1927 by Al Tyson of the Giants by banging out five hits.

HARVARD Again Spurns CRUSADERS

The addition of Davidson College of North Carolina, the return of Springfield College to the opening game date and the continued absence of Holy Cross are the points of interest in Harvard's 1937 gridiron schedule

The list of eight games to be played by the Crimson eleven next year was announced today by the Harvard Athletic Association, following approval of the schedule by the committee on regulation of athletic sports, which held its monthly meeting on Monday night.

Other than the addition of Davidson and the return of Springfield, filling the two breather spots, the opening day and pre-Yale game dates, the Crimson eleven engages the same murderers' row as it is scheduled to meet next fall.

The schedule

October 2, Springfield; 9, Brown; 16, Navy at Baltimore; 23, Dartmouth; 30, Princeton at Princeton, Nov. 6, Army; 13, Davidson; 20, Yale.

This is the first time Harvard and Davidson have ever met on the gridiron, though the North Carolina College is annually on the grid lists of West Point and Annapolis.

The addition of Davidson was made, it is understood, on the recommendation of Dick Harlow, the Crimson's new gridiron chief.

Lack of Hurlers Hampers Huskies

With his Huskies to play five games within the next seven days, Coach Al McCoy is still at a loss for first-class starting pitchers.

Gus Rook, former Mechanic Arts ace, who hurled the first two tilts, will start tomorrow afternoon against Rhode Island State at Kingston R. I. and will also pitch Tuesday at Brooklyn, N. Y., where the Northeastern nine will meet Long Island U.

MOTHER Inspires KELLEY

SUPERVISES RACER'S DIET

By Will Connell

Sunlight polishes the dishes and pans and paints yellow the walls of the spotless kitchen in the Kelley home in Arlington.

It is only a little after 6:30, this Thursday morning in April. In contrast to yesternorn's gloom, the sun is pouring clear morning rays between shaggy masses of cloud and the scene has warmth and cheer.

Mother Bertha Kelley moves quietly between stove and table preparing son Johnny's breakfast cereal. She is a small active lady, with clear blue eyes framed by cameo features and snowy hair brushed straight back from a high forehead.

MOTHER HELPS

Quiet, ... moves, for Johnny has another ... hour's sleep ahead.

"He's a very light sleeper," she comments, "and we try not to disturb him, with the Marathon only a few days away. Just think, Monday afternoon and it will be over for another year.

"You know, I used to worry a good deal when Johnny ran. I was afraid he'd strain himself. But now I have absolute confidence in his judgment. I know if a race becomes too much for him he'll have sense enough to stop. ... course, I do a little worrying, any mother would, but not nearly as much as a few years ago."

Now it is time for Johnny to rise, and his mother goes to the door of his room. A light sleeper, he's wide awake in a moment. Then downstairs to breakfast on a whole grapefruit, cereal with cream and sugar, toast, two boiled eggs, a cup of coffee and a few graham crackers.

He's off to work then, and his mother rests for a few minutes while she chats about her famous son. She has few spare moments during the day with the family members eating at different hours and Johnny's diet getting special attention.

GOOD BOY

"It's a lot of work," she remarked, "But it's worth while if Johnny gets enjoyment and plenty of recreation. He's a good boy, and works hard. I think it'd be wonderful if he could make the Olympic team for the trip to Germany, even if he didn't win the race over there."

Mrs. Kelley knows now just how John wants to balance his meals, and he gets the food he needs and wants without ever thinking about it at home. He watches his restaurant meals carefully, too.

Today he is going to Boston, so he lunches downtown on chicken vegetables, rolls and tea, with fruit salad to top off.

A busy afternoon in Boston and home to dinner. A large steak, two baked potatoes, stewed corn and half a sliced tomato, bread and butter, tea, and a good sized saucer of ice cream.

Johnny enjoys every mouthful, all the more because dinner was exactly what he needed, prepared without causing him any bother. And do you think he appreciates the attention?

"It's wonderful to have a mother like mine," says John. "She does all she can to help me, and knows just what I need. Her thoughtfulness has more to do with my winning races than anyone knows."

The evening is taken up with the nightly trip to Angus MacDonald's home for a back massage. Then the ride home and a few minutes magazine reading. Johnny did no running today, so it early to bed to rest up before the final workout. Nine-thirty, and he's sound asleep.

Track Meet

Varsity Coach Ed Parsons and Freshman Coach Jerry Tatton have divided their squads evenly for the intra-mural track meet tomorrow afternoon at Huntington field.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

Two winners, ABBOT'S LAST and THRUSTER were my choices yesterday. CRYSTAL PRINCE and NEAP finished third while KEARSARGE ran out of the money. The bankroll made a small gain, it now being $533.00.

Today is my fourteenth as New England's only girl handicapper. During this period the bankroll has stayed out in front of the original $500 I began the experiment with.

ANN MARSTERS' BETS
$2 Win Playfole, Jamaica 1st
$2 Win Wandrel, Havre 7th
$2 Win Capt. Jerry, Jamaica 6th

Late Specials

$2 Win Fraidy Cat, Jamaica 2nd
$2 Win Reelection, Havre 1st

BANKROLL IS NOW $533.00. DAY'S PLAY $10.

I'm expecting a price on PLAYFOLE in the first at Jamaica. CAPT. JERRY at the same strip appears well spotted. It's $2 to win on each.

WANDREL in the seventh at Havre de Grace, shapes up as a safe wagering proposition.

My late specials for today are FRAIDY CAT in the first at Jamaica and REELECTION in the first at Havre de Grace.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst, small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the fourteenth day.

To the person guessing nearest the amount of Ann Marsters betting bankroll on May 16 will go $100 in cash and season passes to Rockingham, Narragansett and Suffolk Downs. Next best guessers will receive a total of 10 season passes.

It's a fascinating game and there are no strings or catches.

Miss Marsters started with $500 donated by Walter O'Hara. How much will she have May 16? Entries close May 4.

FOXX WRITES

Mourns Loss Of Babe Ruth | Race for Home Run Mark On

By JIMMY FOXX

New York, April 17—We'll find out just how good the Yankees are during the next few days. Joe McCarthy's team is one of the clubs we shall have to beat out if we are going to win the American League pennant.

So we'll be in there today shooting with everything we have. I have always believed that the best defense was a strong offense. Keep the other club on the defensive and you don't have to worry about your own defense.

We have come through with flying colors in our two league games. The Athletics however are not as strong as the Yankees. The real test will come in the clashes in the Yankee Stadium the steel and concrete structure built as a result of the drawing power of the mighty Babe Ruth.

It didn't seem natural last season not to see the old Bambino with his famous No. 3 on his back swinging at the agate at the Yankee Stadium. And the place will be a bit lonesome this year without Ruth on the job even though it may be jammed with 70,000 fans.

I would like to see Babe Ruth back in the baseball picture some place. The big fellow has color and crowd appeal. And he certainly did his share to make baseball the game it is today.

I have started my drive to smash Babe Ruth's home run record of 60 circuit clouts. I have a mark of 58, but this year I am determined to get at least 61 home runs.

I got a great thrill when I connected with one of Johnson a pitches in yesterday's game with the Athletics in Boston, and dropped the agate in the center field bleachers back of the flag pole. It was the second time in my baseball career that I have been able to hit a ball to that spot.

Billy Rogell of the Tigers and Jack Wilson, young Sox pitcher, are the only others to make similar home runs, Joe Cashman tells me.

The fact there were two men on base when I got my home run made me feel better. I always like to get my big smashes in what we ball players call "the clutch." This means when there are men on base or when a home run with nobody on will win the ball game.

MANUSH STARS

Manush picked out three pitches to his liking and got as many hits. He's a natural hitter and will add much to our power.

Every player on the club felt as bad as Joe Connin did when we learned our boss had broken the thumb on his right hand. Joe has worked very hard this spring and he has been anxious to have a good season in the field.

He got a bad break yesterday, but will bob back with plenty of fight. He cannot get back into the game too soon to satisfy the rest of us. We know what Cronin's fielding, batting and field generalship mean to the success of our club.

Meanwhile, we are fortunate in having Jack Kramer and Bill Werber for third base service. Almada can be placed in right field if necessary.

Cronin will run the club from the bench until his injured thumb gets all right. The rest of us will try to make a few extra hits to make up for the batting punch we will miss with our boss out of the lineup.

Then, if we keep winning, Joe won't find it so difficult to sit on the bench for a few weeks.

Come on, Yankees. We're ready to go!

Allan Wilson To See Derby

Allan J. Wilson, Suffolk Downs' managing director, is planning to take in the running of the Kentucky Derby next month.

Wilson will contact the owners of the Derby entrants with a view to lining up new entrants for the various stakes and handicaps at Suffolk's summer session.

Wilson likes J. E. Widener's Brevity, Charge Shot or Sickle colt, to win the Blue Grass classic. The local horseman saw Brevity win the Florida Derby at Hialeah in handsome fashion and off that feat is picking the Widener colt-bearer to take down the verdict in the "Derby."

Wilson reports that over 250 entrants have been received for the summer meeting at the East Boston oval.

AHEARN ENTRIES

For 'Gansett Handicap Now 31

By Bob Ahearn

Pawtucket, R. I., April 17—Narragansett Park is buzzing with preparations for the opening, only two weeks away.

Pat Horgan, able racing secretary, has his routine well advanced and announces that the nominations for the $5000 added Narragansett Handicap, opening day feature, total 31.

Some of the outstanding sprint champions of the American turf have been nominated for the Handicap, a six-furlong sprint for three-year-olds and upward.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Dreel, winner of the feature in 1935, has been nominated by his youthful owner, along with his stablemates Bachelor Dinner and Speed To Spare. Dreel beat out Captain Argo and Howard in the Handicap last season, running the distance in 1 11 4-5.

Clang a four-year-old bay son of Cymbric-Chickasaw will be making his New England debut in the Narragansett Handicap. Clang property of John F. Clark, Jr. New Orleans sportsman, is the holder of the world's record for six furlongs in 1 09 2-5.

The Stimulus gelding turned the trick at the Coney Island track last Columbus Day. At Arlington Park, Clang proved he could travel seven furlongs, when he equalled the world's record for the distance established 29 years ago by the immortal Roseben at Belmont Park.

George D. Widener's great weight packer, Satinn, is listed in the nominations along with Frank A. Carrewan's Time Supply. Mrs. Walter O'Hara's New Deal, a Bowie winner, will be a starter.

A big field seems sure to face Starter Harry Morrissey, and ... will take a stellar sprint champion to win from the following nominations.

Some Rejected as Too Young

By Walter Kiley

Several hundred bicycle entries have been rejected for Sunday's Jefferson Club marathon race.

President Daniel O'Brien of the Jefferson Club and Chief Marshal Billy Coughlin were forced to this step by the extreme youth of many of these youngsters.

Boys were entered all the way from six years up. The directors naturally take the stand that children of such tender years could never withstand the rigors of a long ride and have therefore set 10 years of age as the lowest limit.

All entrants should have their cards of official notification by now. If not, they are in today's mails. Complete instructions are included.

The full list of entries will number close to 400 with the rejections eliminated.

All entries will be published in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

So, too, will a full and accurate map of the course from its Newton City Hall start, through Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street, Massachusetts avenue, Memorial Drive into Cambridge and its Jefferson Club finish on Austin street.

Most important will it be for competitors to report to their respective division leaders on time. It would be well to emphasize that all riders must reach the scene of the start by their own efforts. The tremendous field naturally precludes the possibility of the Jefferson Club sponsors from transporting boys to Newton.

YAWKEY GOLD BAGS CLOSING

NO MORE Spending SPREES

THINKS SOX ARE READY

By Joe Cashman

Thomas Austen Yawkey says he is all through going on wild spending sprees to build up his Red Sox and put Boston on the baseball map.

Yawkey made this statement to me as he finished reading the Night Pink Final of the Boston Evening American early last evening as the Sox departed for New York where they play today.

"The Night Pink Final has all the details on Joe Cronin's injury, all the baseball scores, racing news and everything else in sports and news," remarked the Sox owner. "It certainly looks like a pennant winner."

Yawkey then started talking about the Red Sox.

"Joe Cronin's injury was a tough blow, but we'll come back fighting," he said. Kroner and Werber can take care of third base until Cronin gets back, while McNair can play shortstop.

NEED PITCHER

"I don't see how we could improve upon our present club at the moment. Sure, we could use another good pitcher; every club could. Good pitchers, however, can't be bought or found.

"I think we're set as a pennant contenders for some time to come, at least until we can get what new talent we'll need from our own minor league farms, which Billy Evans is now organizing.

"That's why I say I don't expect to pay any more record sums for ball players. Incidentally, most of the prices I am reported to have paid for my current cast are greatly exaggerated."

How did Marse Tom feel when he received the reports of Joe Cronin's injury?

Just as he did when seeing "Lefty" Grove. Sorry for the player.

"It's the player and not the owner who should be sympathized with when a star, bearing a big price tag, comes up with an injury when he joins a new club" asserts Marse Tom. "It's the player's career that's in jeopardy and he's bound to take his troubles more to heart than an owner would.

"Injury and sickness are a part of baseball. None of us like to have the jinx hit us, but an owner who can't accept hard luck calmly has no business in the sport.

"Naturally, I felt badly over the Grove, Cronin and Marcum misfortunes but no worse that I would if a player whom I got comparatively cheap were to be crippled. I can't understand how the price could affect one's feelings in such cases."

An owner in a million, the guy who owns the million-dollar Fenway Park.

All hos worrith about now is that too much will be expected of his platinum-plated cast this season.

MUCH EXPECTED

"All the publicity given to the cost of the club puts all my players in a very bad spot," he chirps.

"The fans expect too much of them. Everybody in the lineup is expected to make a hit every time he steps to bat. Foxx has to hit a home run or he's a flop. Nobody is ever supposed to make an error, mis-judge a ball or get caught stealing.

"That's a nonsensical attitude. Our players are human and occasionally err like those on all other clubs.

Yawkey stated that when in Boston he never misses reading the Night Pink Final of the Boston Evening American.

"It's like a home run off Jimmy Foxx's hat," he said. "I'm for the Night Pink Final. It's a winner."

"A GREAT EDITION," CHIRPS YAWKEY

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

TOM YAWKEY, president of the Red Sox, looks over the new Night Pink Edition of the Boston Evening American and agrees with Boston's sports fans that it is "tops." The edition carries more complete baseball, racing and other sports news of the day than any paper in the city. It's policy is "Today's sports news today."

Cronin Injury Is Disappointing

Yawkey Still Has Confidence

By JACK CONWAY

SPEAKING of news: It was a bitter disappointment to Joe Cronin when he suffered a broken thumb when he was unintentionally bumped by Higgins of the Athletics. Cronin has been as anxious to have a great year at shortstop as he has been to see the Sox win the pennant.

Joe conditioned himself during the winter months. He took off 18 pounds and scaled 172 pounds for the opening game.

Cronin wanted to prove he was still one of the greatest shortstops in baseball, and that his fielding and batting could win games for his club.

Secretly Cronin was upset over some of the criticisms that had been directed against his playing last season. He had the courage to carry on his fight against his critics as an active ball player, and was in the midst of the act on when he met with the injury that will keep him out of the game for weeks.

• • •

Tom Yawkey gambled $250,000 and a five-year contract to Cronin at $25,000 on his player-manager. Yawkey still believes his investment will prove a winning one. Call it Yawkey luck, if you will, but the youthful Sox owner has the touch of Midas.

YAWKEY, whose silver mines in the West which have given him the handsome profit of $28,000,000 as a result of President Roosevelt's silver policy. When one is blessed that kind of money, he does not seem to be afflicted with a gambler's complex, although he may be with losing chips.

• • •

Yawkey has two hobbies, fishing and taking out with his beauteous wife (Miss Eleanor Fenway Park) any morning when the Sox are at home you have more of a chance of finding Yawkey in the outfield shagging flies than you have of locating him in his business office.

• • •

If it had been Cronin's left instead of his right thumb that was broken he would be able to report for the game sooner. He is left-handed, was a pitcher and played first base before he was shifted to shortstop. Cronin is the only player in baseball history to play every position on the baseball field. He suffered most of his injuries while playing second ball in New York. Despite bad hands, Wagner became one of the greatest shortstops of all time.

• • •

Carl Hubbard, National League umpire and former college star, told Boston friends that Joe McKenney's 1923 baseball team at Boston College was the strongest college outfit he ever saw in action. Hubbard, while with Centenary, played against McKenney's outfit, and was beaten.

• • •

Alex MacLean has signed Eddie Ladish to catch Lou Jacobs at the Arena on next Wednesday night. Ladish has always been a hot attraction at the Arena, and is proud of his title, "Rough, Rudy."

• • •

I'm on my way to the National League Park to see the Bees blast open their home season against the Giants. I'll be seeing you.

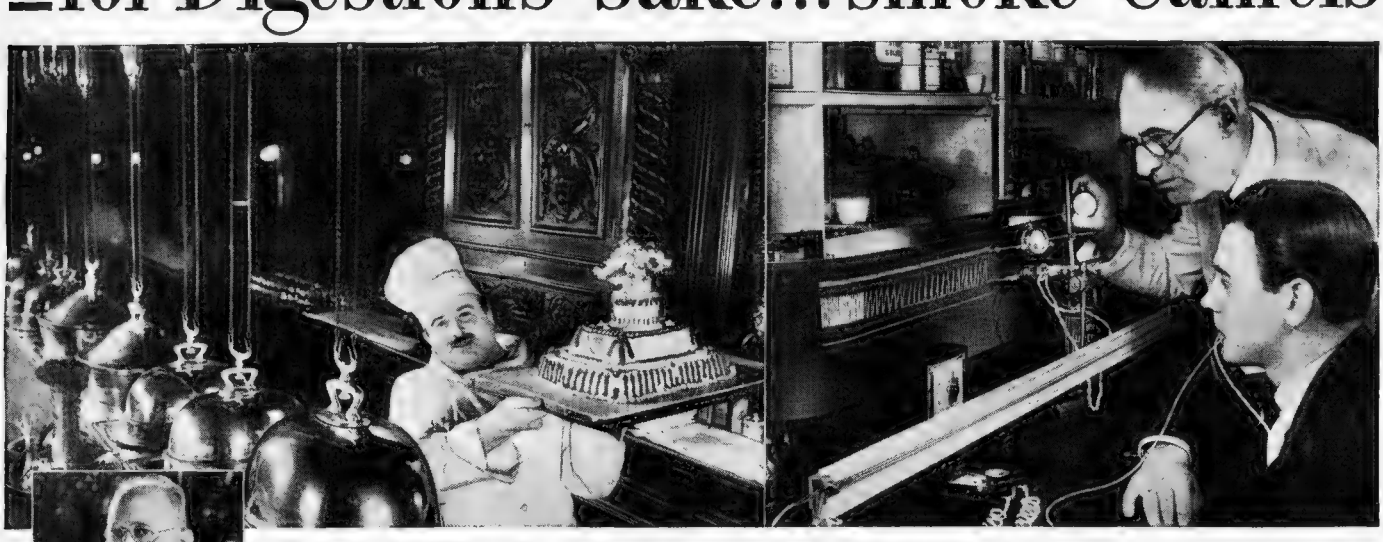
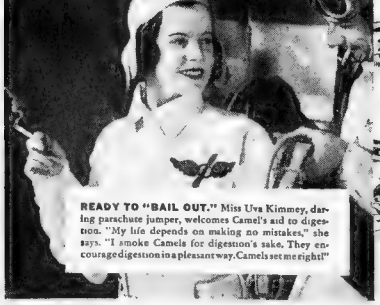
for Digestion's sake... smoke Camels



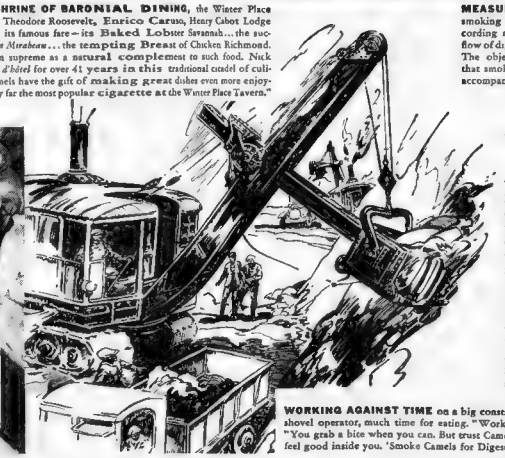
HISTORICAL SHRINE OF BARONIAL DINING, the Winter Place Tavern in Boston. Theodore Roosevelt, Enrico Caruso, Henry Cabot Lodge knew and praised its famous fare—its Baked Lobster Savannah... the succulent Filet Mignon Meuthenn... the tempting Breast of Chicken Richmond. Here Camels reign supreme as a natural complement to such food. Nick Stuhl (left), maitre d'hôtel for over 41 years in this traditional citadel of culinary art, says: "Camels have the gift of making great dishes even more enjoyable. Camels are by far the most popular cigarette at the Winter Place Tavern."

MEASURING THE EFFECT on digestion of smoking Camels (above). Delicately adjusted recording machines enable scientists to measure the flow of digestive secretions under various conditions. The objective, scientific evidence obtained shows that smoking a Camel, both with and without the accompaniment of food, increases the secretion of digestive fluids. The importance of this extra secretion in facilitating digestion is a matter of common knowledge.

Good digestion and good tobaccos put more zest in eating and more enjoyment in smoking. So smoke Camels... for digestion's sake... and for their matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. Camels set you right!



READY TO "BAIL OUT." Miss Uva Kimmey, daring parachute jumper, welcomes Camel's aid to digestion. "My life depends on making no mistakes," she says. "I smoke Camels for digestion's sake. They encourage digestion in a pleasant way. Camels set me right!"

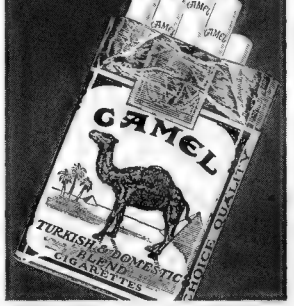


WORKING AGAINST TIME on a big construction job doesn't leave Bob Duffey, steam-shovel operator, much time for eating. "Work comes first—eating, second," Bob explains. "You grab a bite when you can. But trust Camels to make even a quick meal taste good and feel good inside you. 'Smoke Camels for Digestion's Sake' hits the ball right on the nose."

Smoking Camels Promotes the Enjoyment of Good Food and Stimulates Digestion

The nervousness induced by our modern life often affects digestion. The mental effort—physical rush—the worry and tension—all slow down the flow of the digestive fluids. Smoking Camels acts to restore and increase the natural and necessary flow of the digestive fluids.

Modern scientific research, based on Pavlov's great work on digestion, definitely confirms the fact that Camels encourage good digestion in this pleasant way. As you enjoy Camel's superb mildness, you feel cheered. Enjoy Camels as much as you like. They never tire your taste or frazzle your nerves.



Costlier Tobaccos!

• Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic... than any other popular brand.

'Dead' Woman Heard 'Soft Music'

London, April 17 (US)—Brought back to life fifteen minutes after she had "died" today, Daisy Allan, a pretty young woman, told the London Daily Express she experienced only "peace and rest" and "heard soft music" in the quarter-hour of her "death."

Miss Allan, 22-year-old striking brunette, was pronounced dead in Oxford, England, today the Express stated.

Her heart ceased to beat at 11:45 a. m. but fifteen minutes later she was revived by Dr. Justin Bailey who injected a little known drug named coramine and applied artificial respiration, the Express stated.

The newspaper quoted the young woman as saying:

"I heard faint music. Everything was very peaceful and quiet. It was like nothing I had ever know before.

"I seemed to be suspended and all the time soft music was playing.

"There was no pain, no terror—only peace and rest."

When a Cobra Spits!

If You Are Afraid of Snakes— Don't Read This

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Snake collecting is a funny hobby, isn't it?

GEORGE DE KOVEN, of New York City, our featured new member today, thinks it's one of the most interesting hobbies in the world. You can have it, George. If you don't mind, I'll continue collecting adventure stories for a hobby and play safe.

Most people have a horror of any kind of snake, but now and then you find someone who likes them. I never could understand it but I've seen it several times. I met a man out in Texas once who makes a very good living out of snakes. "Snake" King is his name and he has a big snake farm near Brownsville, Texas.

I met "Snake" in 1916 when the American troops were down on the Mexican Border and I saw him handle poisonous reptiles the way most of us do kittens. "Snake" catches rattlers or any other kind of American poisonous reptile by order.

His customers are zoos and animal circuses all over the world and now and then an amateur collector, like George, sends him a mail order for a nice deadly sidewinder or a couple of red-bellied black widow spiders!

"Snake" took me for a little walk in the woods to show me how it's done. He had a small forked stick in his hand, which he explained he only carried for MY protection.

We hadn't gone far when "Snake" suddenly stopped and cocked his head on one side. He must smell snakes because in a second I heard a faint rattle and "Snake" pointed with his forked stick at what looked like a heavy vine.

It was no vine though. It was a full grown, diamond-back rattlesnake, just starting to coil. I felt like going in the opposite direction but King jumped right toward the darn thing and picked it up the way you would a harmless stick!

Before the rattler could strike, "Snake" had him held in his bare hand by the back of the neck. I couldn't believe my eyes. The blame snake was about four feet long and doing his best to get in his deadly bite but "Snake" had him held in such a way that it was impossible.

Then he pointed out the poison fangs in the rattler's mouth to me and calmly dropped the wriggling form in a sack he carried.

George De Koven's story today is about another kind of a snake. George has rattlers and water moccasins and most every other kind of American snake, but he had his heart set on procuring a "spitting cobra."

Now, a spitting cobra—as the name suggests—is a snake that can spit a mouthful of poison with the deadly accuracy of a backwoods tobacco chewer hitting a distant cuspidor.

Well, George sent abroad for his snake and he got it by express.

George got a great thrill the day his "package" arrived. He was cleaning out the glass cage of his water moccasins when the expressman gingerly handed it to him. A moccasin, I guess you know, is just about as deadly as a rattler, but George was used to them and knew they wouldn't bother him unless he bothered them.

The moccasins were getting a little exercise, slithering around the floor of the "snake room" at George's feet. As long as you don't step on a moccasin, George says, you're safe.

On the floor across from George, next to the glass snake cases, was a pathetic little cage. I say "pathetic" because it contained the poor little mice that furnish the main diet for snakes in captivity. A snake will not eat meat unless it is alive and these unfortunate harmless white rats are raised to be eaten.

By the way, I hope that none of George's neighbors read this story. They might get a little nervous if they knew the strange guests Little-mouse George is hospitality!

Getting back to the package of live cobra: George opened it as the expressman left him alone in the snake room. He could tell by the weight that it was a full grown specimen and his eyes opened wide with delight at the head in addition to his collection.

His eyes didn't stay open long, however, because suddenly with a hissing sound the cobra spit! Straight 'n George's eyes went the stream of deadly poison! It blinded him and burnt like acid into his sensitive pupils!

George staggered back helplessly and dropped the cobra to the floor. Suffering agonies of pain from his seared eyes he started to grope for the door. Then he stepped and stood still. With a chill of horror it occurred to him that the moccasins were loose! Blinded as he was, he might step on one!

Well, sir, if you ask me, George was in a spot. Besides the mental torture of wondering if he were permanently blind he was in danger of receiving a mortal wound from one of the poisonous snakes on the floor. The cobra might strike him, too, instead of spitting.

There was only one way out for George and he took it. He knew where the white rat cage lay so he carefully shuffled blindly toward the cage. He found it, opened it.

The ill fated rats scurried out. The snakes went after them intent only on catching their prey. George could hear the sounds of the chase as he now shifted and felt his way to the door. He reached the door at last and fell outside.

Well, sir, George almost lost his eyesight, but he didn't. The doctors did what they could for him to neutralize the unknown poison and in a few days he was able to see again. Wow! What a hobby! And it sure takes a lot of different people to make up an adventurer's club, doesn't it?

Tomorrow we'll have another thrilling yarn. Don't miss it!

LEWIS HANEY ON TRENDS

Chain Stores BY SELLING CHEAPER Increase Jobs

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, April 17—Several letters have come to me referring to my recent comment on the Patman bill to regulate chain stores.

In dealing with this subject, as is usually the case in economics, the truth is a matter of discrimination. We must discriminate between the good and the bad, and make allowance for real differences in conditions.

We must not only see the differences that exist, but we must recognize that some differences are natural and necessary, while others are artificial and unnecessary. We must admit that where differences in performance are real, important, and necessary, there should also be differences in treatment.

* * *

The operating methods of chain stores differ in many respects from those of the "regular" or "independent" stores.

The "chains" seek economy in buying by making purchases in large quantity for a large number of stores.

They seek economy in management by directing general policy from a central organization and employing relatively cheap managers of local stores.

They seek a more rapid turnover in merchandise by careful selection of store locations, by standardizing and simplifying their merchandise to handle only quick-moving items, and by skillful advertising.

They seek to reduce operating cost in their stores, and to eliminate much of the wasteful credit and delivery "service" which other stores render.

* * *

These are all good things. They can enable us to buy many things cheaper.

But such things are not a necessary or essential part of the chain store system. Moreover, unfair discriminations in price, and fraudulent and deceptive practices in selling, are already prohibited by existing law.

On the other hand, my studies have convinced me that really live and efficient individual retailer can compete successfully with the chain stores. In fact, the live independent has learned much from the chain. But the retailer who gets loaded with slow-moving merchandise, is lax in extending credit, and is poorly located, has trouble—and he ought to.

* * *

The first big mistake of such demagogues as Patman is the notion of treating everybody equally. This is quibbling concerning "equality." Equality is not necessarily justice. When people or organizations are really different, they should not be treated as if they were the same. The worst kind of inequality is the equal treatment of unequals.

The second big mistake they make is in attacking organizations merely because they are big. If bigness leads to real efficiency, I say let's have bigness. I do not favor inefficiency and high cost in a little organization any more than in a big one. I oppose monopoly, both big and little, partly because it tends to inefficiency and high cost. But bigness is not monopoly.

The reason why these political demagogues rant about "the little man" is, that there are more little men than big men, so they have more votes. But you and I don't want votes. We want cheap groceries and drugs. And the chains help us get them.

* * *

The third argument is that the chains make less employment and less money in circulation.

The basic mistake in this argument lies in the assumption that what we want is work and money. I say that what we really want are food, drugs, tobacco and other necessities and comforts. We don't want either work or money for themselves.

If, therefore, the chains keep living costs down, they allow the consumer's dollar to go further, he can buy more things. By saving labor, they can sell cheaper. By selling cheaper, they enable us to buy more. Then when we buy more goods, more goods must be produced, which means more employment—employment in making things which otherwise would not be made and sold.

RETAIL Trade AIDED WEATHER IS FACTOR

By Associated Press

New York, April 17—Favorable weather aided retail trade during the week, it was shown today in a survey by Dun & Bradstreet.

"Receiving a fresh impetus from the more balmy spring weather, business gathered new momentum during the week," it was stated.

Retail distribution naturally fell back to a slower pace following the final week of the Easter shopping rush, but in many sections surpassed the 1935 comparatives.

Buying at wholesale, on the other hand, widened, as commitments were placed for early summer needs and reduced stocks brought hurried re-orders for goods required for current selling events.

* * *

The post-Easter decline of consumer buying, it was stated, was less in evidence than usual at retail.

As the comparison was made with the peak of the Easter-selling period last year, the estimated volume of retail sales for the week was not more than 2 to 5 per cent above the corresponding 1935 total.

* * *

Only a few of the cities were excluded in the general sharp drop from the preceding week's showing.

Heartened by the reduction of their stocks of spring merchandise, the number of buyers visiting stores of the leading wholesale markets during the week was the largest in more than a month.

Many retailers still were in urgent need of stocks, but had postponed ordering until the Easter sales had established the trend of demand.

More Stars Guests of Miss Parsons

Hollywood, April 17—Louella O. Parsons, well-known Universal Service motion picture editor, who each week brings a galaxy of famous film stars to the Hollywood hotel program, this week chooses as her guests of honor Mary Astor, Bert Lytell, Edith Fellows and Jackie Moran. They will present scenes from "And So They Were Married."

Allan Jones, whose meteoric rise to fame as one of Hollywood's favorite stars is well known, will act as master of ceremonies. In addition, he will be heard in a number of new songs.

Frances Langford, the Moonglow Girl who has built up a following for herself on this program, will sing several new numbers. Jean Dickenson will also contribute a vocal number, and Raymond Paige and his orchestra will, as usual, be an important factor in the program which goes on at 8 o'clock over KHJ, PST.

Next week, in addition to Cary Grant and Joan Bennett in a preview of "Big Brown Eyes," Lawrence Gray, popular young tenor, will appear as one of Miss Parsons' guest stars. He is best known for his work in "Marianne," in which he played opposite Marion Davies. This will be Mr. Gray's initial appearance in the Hollywood Hotel program.

CHINA Enlists U. S. EXPERTS IN MONETARY CRISIS

By Walter Fitzmaurice
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

Washington, April 17—The Chinese government was disclosed today to have enlisted aid of the United States government monetary experts to preserve China's economic health against the contingency of a Russo-Japanese war, with China as the prospective prize.

K. P. Chen, Y. P. Koo and P. W. Kuo, directors of the Bank of China, have submitted ledgers of the Chinese treasury and her principal bank to scrutiny of federal experts.

They are being advised on the operation of China's new managed currency.

China nationalized silver and established the new monetary system recently with the two-fold purpose of stopping foreign drainage of her silver stock and diverting the yuan (Chinese dollar) from influence of the Japanese yen.

* * *

Events foreshadowing resort to arms by Russia and Japan for exclusive domination of the world's richest potential market brought the Chinese bankers from Shanghai seeking Washington counsel, it was learned. The United States has been the traditional champion of Chinese independence and the "open door" for foreign trade.

Russian arms, money and military advice reputedly are being provided the Chinese "Red" army in the Moscow drive to take 400 million Chinese into the Soviet union. Dabbles indicate the "Reds" now control provinces with 60 million population.

* * *

Infiltration of several hundred thousand Japanese from Formosa into Fukien province and renewal of Japanese inspired agitation for "autonomy" of five northern Chinese provinces have aroused fears. These provinces may soon join Manchukuo under Tokyo domination. Consular reports indicate the Manchukuo "open door" has been locked and barred.

Informed military observers do not expect the opening of Russo-Japanese hostilities for at least another year, the Japanese being unprepared.

Commerce Department figures show a slash of American exports to China from 124 million dollars in 1929 to 38 million in 1935, with this year's February-March exports 50 per cent under last year's. Japan's sales to China fell from 503 million yuan in 1929 to 139 million in 1935, but the current trend is upward. The yuan is currently quoted at 29.75 cents.

* * *

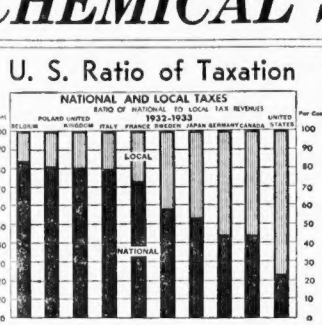
To restore dwindling Chinese-American trade and facilitate heavy Chinese purchases of arms, rumbling above $3,500,000, December through March, the Shanghai bankers have been assured a charter for a New York branch of the Bank of China.

It is understood the institution will act as purchasing agent of the Chinese government, which owns 30 per cent of its stock.

To aid in establishing the managed yuan the treasury has purchased 60 million ounces of Chinese government silver, paying with 10 million gold dollars and 20 million in American dollar exchange. Further aid is reported available if necessary.

CHEMICAL SALES GAIN IN 1936

U. S. Ratio of Taxation



This chart represents a comparison of the tax-raising systems of the United States and foreign countries. The bars show the ratio of national to local tax revenues for each country during 1932-33.

Approximately 80 per cent of the revenues of England, Belgium, Italy and Poland are raised by the central government. The national revenue is derived in most countries by a combination of income taxes, inheritance, business, excise and customs taxes.

In the United States during 1932-33 the Federal Government raised only 28 per cent of the total revenue while State and local authorities raised 77 per cent.

Favorable Outlook Seen

New York, April 17—The trend in chemical sales thus far in 1936 has been gradually upward, despite the early season handicaps of cold weather and the tendency among many users to restrict purchases to a hand-to-mouth basis, according to the Standard Statistics Company, of New York.

Prospects for coming months are generally favorable, the indicated sustained activity among such important customers as automobile and steel manufacturers, and expansion of building construction signifying worthwhile improvement in chemical orders, as compared with a year ago.

There have been no major changes in prices for most items, with the exception of the solvents group. Competition in the latter has forced down posted quotations in recent months by varying amounts, averaging 10 per cent to 15 per cent.

As profit margins in most lines depend essentially on volumes, the earnings trend for the majority of chemical companies is definitely upward.

It is estimated that combined profits of the 13 leading companies for the first quarter were 27 per cent larger than a year earlier. A similarly favorable comparison is indicated for the second quarter.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, April 17—Pennsylvania Railroad's February earnings statement was surprising to Wall Streeters who had read President M. W. Clement's statement in Washington three weeks ago that the road's February net income would be "about the same" as February, 1935, despite heavy expenditures.

The road yesterday reported February net income of $804,617, against $1,015,424 in February, 1935.

This made net income of the first two 1936 months total 17 cents a capital share, against 15 cents in the like 1935 period. Cold weather and snow lifted the Penney's operating expenses in January and February about $1,000,000 per month, with no compensating factor but heavier coal traffic movement. The Pennsy puts its March flood losses at $12,500,000, of which $8,500,000 represents damage to plant and equipment and $4,000,000 "lost revenues."

It is indicated that the road plans to allocate part of the $8,500,000 repair cost to maintenance, charging this expense against earnings, and assess the remainder against profit and loss account.

The charge against maintenance may be distributed over the final ten 1936 months, and the profit and loss charge taken in the ninth of the year. The $8,500,000 damage to plant and equipment is equal to 64 cents a common share.

The road in 1935 earned $1.81 a common share, against $1.64 in 1934. The Pennsy's freight traffic currently is running about 13 per cent ahead of last year, but for the year to date the cumulative total is only a little over 3 per cent above the like 1935 period.

Reports for First Quarter Disappoint

First quarter corporation reports so far published have proven disappointing in a majority of cases by contrast to preliminary forecasts. In several instances the actual showing barely met revised estimates taking into account the effect of floods in parts of the country.

The statistics confirm beyond a doubt that business suffered a decided slump as a result of these handicaps. There has been concrete evidence, however, of a sharp rebound in numerous branches of trade and industry the last several weeks that will probably reflect in earnings for the current three months.

This promises to be particularly true of the automobile manufacturing and steel industries.

Wall St. Hears

New York, April 17 (INS)—That first half earnings of U. S. Industrial Alcohol (UD) will be around the 70 cents reported a year ago.

That Atlas Powder (APW) earned approximately 65 cents on the common in the initial quarter.

That continuance of the American Sugar Refining (ASR) $2 dividend rate is expected.

That Packard Motor Car (PAK) will show between 10 and 15 cents a share for the first three months.

HUMAN Span of Life LONGER INSURANCE MEN CITE REASONS

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

New York, April 17—President Roosevelt's suggestion that the working age be limited to from 18 to 65 directs attention to the growing longevity of the typical American.

Ever since the foundation of the republic there has been an increasing tendency for Americans to expand their life span. However, this progress has been accelerated in the last 40 years.

As an indication of the changing age prospects in the United States, in Massachusetts in 1850 the typical male at birth had an expectancy of 38 years and females 40½ years. This has been raised to 48 years for males and 51 years for females in the ten original death registration states in 1921; to 57½ years for white males and 60 years for white females in 1921; and to 59 years for males and 63 years for females for the period 1929-1931.

Experts predict that present scientific methods can add another five to ten years to the average span of life. This trend is of crucial importance in connection with the new social security legislation and in connection with the President's proposal for retiring the aged.

In alluding to the known causes of the forces which are making the average age of the American people older than before, Louis I. Dublin and Alfred J. Lotka, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, in their new book entitled "Length of Life," point out:

"This improvement of longevity in the general population is the direct result of the improvement in the environment. We know definitely that these gains were achieved through reduction in the mortality from tuberculosis, through the practical abolition of typhoid fever—at any rate in our most progressive communities—by the control of other infectious diseases, by the development of better working conditions, better housing, more leisure and recreation, in short, a rise in the standard of living.

"We still have additional gains to be made from the further reduction of the infectious diseases, the control of infectious diseases, and accident hazards, and other preventable causes of death. There can be little doubt that from five to ten years can still be added to the average length of life."

The longevity tendencies have the utmost practical significance in connection with forecasting long term economic trends. There had been some unwarranted pessimism concerning the significance of the forecast that the rate of population growth would be seriously reduced by the middle of the century.

ROBERT LUCE

Critical of FEDERAL Lending

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

The Massachusetts Savings Bank Officers' Club has been warned by Hon. Robert Luce to resist invasion of their business by competing government agencies.

Mr. Luce, former congressman from the ninth Massachusetts district, and an acknowledged authority on banking and fiscal affairs, advised the bankers to demand the removal of unfair federal competition.

Pointing out that there are now nearly 30 government lending agencies, Mr. Luce detailed their announced policies and added political considerations make it certain their lending will as a whole be made on less security than private lending. This, he added, means greater losses, which in turn will fall on the taxpayer.

The record-breaking upswing of stock prices is doing so much to create a bearish psychology of any other factor. The absence of an appreciable reaction since March, 1935, convinces many observers that caution is mandatory. The decline last month is not acceptable to these observers, who point out that reactions following important advances normally retrace one to two-thirds of the upswing. With cheerful trade news still prevalent; with confidence improved, even though not yet completely freed of fears of government objectives; with easy money apparently here to stay and finally by brokers' loans testifying to an absence of unthinking speculation the hardiness of a worthwhile reaction is explained, in our opinion.

* * *

Comment: In all the above historical precedent clashes with bull theories that are still operative . . . So far they neutralize one another . . . We think the break will come when there is either a sudden news happening of a frightening nature or a gradual replacement of investment factors by speculative forces . . . Perhaps it will be a sharp jump in brokers' loans . . . Or it may come when investment holdings begin to find their way back into the market . . . Because large holders, despite optimistic forecasts, believe they are too distant discounting of future prospects.

* * *

So far we have covered the possibilities in the current market picture as they relate to the bear factors. Definite conclusions cannot be drawn, as we see it, and we think none will appear, both because of this, more than anything else, a partially invested market position is wise. Prices of issues climb higher there need be no fear of totally lost opportunities, holdings will be available and cash will be on hand when new buying opportunities are presented.

* * *

This and That—Because the capital goods industries face the opportunity of a long period ahead from here representation in them should nearly monopolize the 50 per cent of funds employed in the market . . . Consumer goods suppliers are nearly back to normal and fresh buying incentives seem lacking in here . . . As for steels, the sharp upswing in prices of leading stocks in the industry has placed them in a somewhat different position . . . For poor first quarter earnings may prove deceiving, even though operating rates further expand in the second quarter.

Earnings

Report of Parmelee Transportation Co. and subsidiaries for quarter ended March 31, 1936, shows profit of $85,670 against net loss of $70,327 in March quarter of 1935.

STOCKS Price Trend MIXED

TRADING LIGHT

New York, April 17—It was a two-way stock market today, with oils and specialties pushing ahead while many of the recent leaders backtracked.

Except in the few favored issues, trading was extremely light. Optimistic domestic economic developments were offset, somewhat, by a cloudier foreign picture.

Shares of Indian Refining again provided the bullish feature of the session. Near the beginning of the fourth hour this stock was ahead about 5 points on top of a 3-point advance yesterday.

Others, up fractions to a point, included Standard Oils of New Jersey and Indiana, Houston Oil, Phillips Petroleum, Corn Products, Caterpillar Tractor, Johns-Manville, Ward, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and American Rolling Mill.

Auburn and Case yielded 2 points or so each, and scattered losses were shown by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Anaconda, Westinghouse, eKennecott, Montgomery Ward, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific and Western Union.

Wheat exhibited strength on drought reports, and other grains improved. Bonds held to a restricted area. Foreign currencies were narrow.

Current Topics

Some of the mining stocks, including U. S. Smelting, Cerro De Pasco and American Smelting, rallied when the price of imported bar silver at New York was raised ¼ of a cent an ounce to 45 cents, the first change in the white metal rate since January 20, last and the first lift since last July. Firmness of silver in London was said to have occasioned the advance.

Retail sales this week, Dun & Bradstreet found, had been given fresh impetus by the appearance of balmy spring weather to stimulate distribution, leveled off following the Easter rush, it was said to have surpassed the 1935 comparatives in many instances.

Wholesale orders widened substantially as commitments were moved for early summer needs and reduced inventories brought a renewed demand for goods required for current selling needs.

Continued Treasury disbursements from its balances with the Federal Reserve Banks, with the effect of increasing member bank reserves this week by $172,000,000 and excess reserves by $127,000,000, in addition, it was disclosed that monetary gold stocks were up $10,000,000 to a new record peak at $12,900,000,000.

The French franc, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions here, was down 2 points to 6.59⅝ cents, and sterling was 5 of a cent easier at $4.94⅞.

Freight Loadings Increase

Washington, April 17 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today loadings of revenue freight for the week ending last Saturday totaled 622,618 cars.

This was an increase of 8271 cars, or 1.3 per cent, compared with the preceding week, 8,000 cars, or 1.3 per cent, compared with the corresponding week in 1935, and 55,570 or 6.1 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 42,137 or 7.2 per cent, compared with two years ago.

Comments of Brokers

Pending market developments, believe traders should observe accord of oils and steels now as they have proved to be useful guides as to direction of impending moves out of trial areas like that now prevailing in the market. H. D. Comer—Paine, Webber & Co.

* * *

It seems to us that the utilities might well attract more investment and speculative interest.—J. S. Wilson—Josephthal & Co.

* * *

The continued absence of a more aggressive attitude on the bear side of the market during periods of strength would appear to reflect growing concern over the general level of prices.—J. E. Malloy—Hornblower & Weeks.

* * *

Speculative opinions throughout the street favor a cautious attitude, with a majority of technical students are forecasting a nearby sharp technical correction, C. B. Feigus—Prentice, Blauner & Brady.

* * *

The long-term outlook continues good. The things which are creating nervousness among holders of stocks at the present time are surface factors and do not change the fundamentals of the situation, which are favorable.—Thomson & McKinnon.

* * *

The penetration of those former supports with volume would make it advisable to await a new tested base before expanding intermediate swing positions.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Deserving Poor Suffer Under Raw Deal

IT IS one of the tragic ironies of the reckless political spending of the New Deal that the victims of the waste should be the humble casualties of the depression, in whose interest the American people, through their Congress, so generously have poured out the Nation's wealth in the work of rescue and succor.

For every political favorite of the spoilsman, placed on the payroll after his local district leader had seen that he was "right," some derelict at the bottom of the scale must pay in bread and shelter.

For there is only so much money, exhaustless as may seem the well-nigh incredible sums that have been poured out from the eager heart of the Republic.

Even billions come some day down to the last million, the last thousand, the last dollar, the last cent. The United States Treasury is not filled by a magic wand. It, too, has a bottom.

Thus every dollar squandered on the pampered pets of the ward heeler and the political fixer whose sordid obligation it is to see that the places at the public crib go to those who are "right," and only to those who are "right," is a dollar lost forever to that unhappy forgotten man, the man without a job, and to his pitiful wife and to his children crying for food.

NO GOVERNMENT on earth ever before spent so lavishly of its wealth for the relief of the destitute than has this Government. No people ever spent more freely in such a cause than the American people. They made no murmur when Congress obligated the generation of today, and the generations as yet unborn, to feed the hungry and clothe the naked among them.

And not a single law enacted by Congress in this effort to raise the stricken to their feet contains one single line that could be tortured into the meaning that the relief, in whatever form it might take, direct or indirect, was only for those who had been declared to be "right" by a henchman of the New Deal with "political pull."

But after Congress had taken from the public store sums so vast as to be almost unbelievable, the administrators of this wealth of the people, paid by them to the government in taxes, proceeded to write into the laws a thought they had never contained.

That thought is that not a man's need or hunger shall be the test of his title to a share in a nation's charity, but that that test shall consist in his having been passed upon as "right" by the politicians into whose hands the administration of a people's bounty has fallen.

NONE will be quicker to penetrate the meaning of this than the family without "political pull," whose only crime is poverty, and whose only fault is a lack of influence with the leader and the boss. They will pay in want and misery that the favored who rate "right" may grow fat.

The Administration promised that it would not play politics with human misery.

The Administration has broken many promises.

This is one broken promise which the American people will not forget.

A Man Who Knows Speaks

Deputy Commissioner of Correction Edward A. Bagley of Massachusetts understands alien problems, criminal and otherwise. When he speaks, it is WITH THE AUTHORITY OF PERSONAL AND OFFICIAL CONTACT WITH ALIENS.

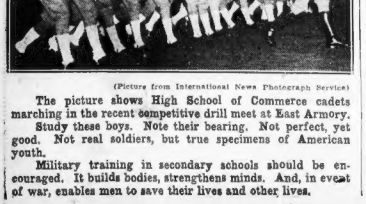
Recently the House Committee on Immigration in Washington had the good fortune to hear Deputy Commissioner Bagley, who urged that the Reynolds-Starnes Bill, now before Congress, be passed FOR THE WELFARE OF AMERICA.

Addressing the Congressmen, Deputy Commissioner Bagley declared:

"I feel that pussy-footing with aliens has been going on too long in America, for it is my opinion that no other countries would permit Americans to go to their lands and carry on all sorts of serious criminal work without deporting them."

Real Americans, native-born and naturalized, will approve Deputy Commissioner Bagley's patriotic stand in defense of a patriotic bill.

Not Perfect, Yet Good



(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

The picture shows High School of Commerce cadets marching in the recent competitive drill meet at East Armory. Study these boys. Note their bearing. Not perfect, yet good. Not real soldiers, but true specimens of American youth.

Military training in secondary schools should be encouraged. It builds bodies, strengthens minds. And, in event of war, enables men to save their lives and other lives.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, April 17—Thoughts while strolling: The real New York people rarely hear about:

O. O. McIntyre

When everything is going well it treats you casually. But let misfortune come and it's right on your door step to help. Add dramatically expressive hands —Claudette Colbert's.

Whatever became of Nascha Rambova? No one can zoom into a room like Herbert Bayard Swope. Or arrive so mouselike as Sam H. Harris. Lawrence Tibbett has the most boyish speaking voice on the radio. In one year Major Bowes has become, next to the President, the best-known American.

Look alikes: Paul Muni and Grover Whelan. When tastier dishes are devised Bruno Lessing will write about them. Scarcely a pompadour left if anything happened to George S. Kaufman's. Every columnist would like to hit the bull's eye as regularly as Percy Crosby does with his cartoon.

No one could he quite so innocent as wide-eyed Peter Arno appears. Wonder if the advertising men Bill Mennen and Phil Lennen ever met? That superb public air of Nicholas Murray Butler. He interesting to watch Gene Tunney dining at Dempsey's. Achmed Abdullah's jerky grin.

Poor Paul McCullough! For years depressed over being a stooge. Theodora Dreiser winding shopping—and munching an apple. Fitting preacher name: Christian F. Reisner. Gilbert Seldes might be a philosophical mayor in Brittany. Ed Sullivan thinks Ernest Hemingway a crack name for a Wodehouse butler.

The pin games mushrooming with all the upshoot of midget golf have shown great durability —but many believe they are edging the predicted debacle.

In a year's time the promoters gobbled up practically every available high-priced corner along mid-town Broadway. Concessions were granted in the manner of the street carnival, and business boomed.

Even stormy evenings they were packed. But for some weeks business has been on the dwindle and there have been legal interference, too. Gambling route. So many believe the end is in sight.

The dusky Josephine Baker proved what the drama critics contended on her stage debut here. It is that she is lost on a big stage and needed intimacy of a small room for her birdlike voice and snaky wriggles. Her new club—where she does exhibition dances with white boys —opened auspiciously. And whereas her revue performances were pretty much flops she became for a time at least a "night club draw."

The most popular night club hostess New York has ever known was, of course, Texas Guinan, with Helen Morgan a runner-up. For a short haul, Justine Johnson at her Little Club brought out the minkiest and top-hatted crowd.

Harry Richman established the all time high for male cabaret performers as an attraction at a Manhattan hotel for several years ago.

And, of course, at the moment the Milwaukee-born old timer, Benny Fields has outdistanced the pack in a cake walk prance with silk hat aloft. A happy gesture toward a sky that for him a few weeks ago was as black as ink!

So far as I recall my first night club experience in New York was at Risenweber's in Columbus Circle. Sophie Tucker was an attraction, but in those days slightly overshadowed by Doraldina, who died the other day. She was first of the hula dancers, a Hawaiian from Muncie, Ind., and her wiggles were considered a bit naughty in those hallowed days.

Among those pointed out to me by my cicerone were Mae Murray, the Dolly Sisters, Foxhall Keene, Nils Florman and Larry and Monty Waterbury, the polo stars.

John Steinberg, now tickling the Hollywood palate, was in charge of Reisenweber's. And Grayson reminded there until 3 a. m., then slipped—or staggered —up Broadway a few steps to Rustanoff's Jimmy Black and White room.

It was the vogue of the Castles, and they usually dropped in to do "a Castle walk" and Vernon would clear at the drums. At dawn those with fortitude went to Tom Healy's at 66th and Broadway, where the morning bud of gaiety was just bursting into flower.

I'm one of the nit-wits who stops, turns to watch and chuckles when some unfortunate's hat is swept off by a sudden gale. It happened today at that windy corner of 57th and Broadway. And to a fat man who waddled. He retrieved it almost at my feet. To make him feel comfortable, I observed: "Montaigne said no one could feel romantic chasing his hat." Snapped he: "You are not so hot as a dream prince yourself standing still."

Well, Why Not?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

You want Life. Lots of Life. You're always peeving because you don't get enough of it. Wondering how you can get more. And asking people and reading books.

Well, you'll get lots of answers, stranger. But if you really want to make a success of living, there is just one fact you must face:

YOU'VE GOT TO KNOW WHAT YOU WANT.

You can go Elsie Robinson practically anywhere in life—do almost anything you wish—

BUT YOU'VE GOTTO KNOW WHAT YOU WANT BEFORE YOU START.

There's just one thing that life and your fellow men can't and won't do for you, and that is, make up your mind. This seems a simple and reasonable statement when set down in cold print. Yet most of us spend all our days avoiding it.

YOU MUST DECIDE

We're always expecting the other fellow to shape our program for us. Or waiting for Lady Luck to hand it to us on a silver platter. Or even nagging God for directions.

I don't know much about God, partner, but I've seen plenty of life. And I'm telling you that if you can't do your own picking, you're just out of luck. Life has no use for sissies. Or cry babies. Or gimme-gimme kids. Life will give you what you want and when you ask for it, and not until.

If you can make up your mind what you want—whether it be peace or power, freedom or protection, opportunity, adventure or quiet reflection . . . when you can make up your mind what you want and are willing to back the desire with all you have, then you'll get it.

"SO CAN YOU"

And this applies to every man and every woman in every circumstance. To heckled husbands and worried wives. To men out of jobs. And men in jobs that don't fit their stature. To all people who are sorry for themselves and feel somebody should do something for them.

There IS somebody who should do something about you, but that somebody is YOURSELF.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND AS TO WHAT YOU WANT. THIS IS YOUR RIGHT—YOUR MOST SACRED RIGHT. YOU WERE NOT BORN INTO THIS WORLD TO BE GROUND BENEATH ANYONE'S HEEL AND YOU WON'T BE IF YOU HAVE THE SPUNK.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND WHAT YOU WANT. THERE'S NOTHING CRIMINAL ABOUT THAT . . . NOTHING CRUEL. IT IS NOT ONLY YOUR RIGHT BUT YOUR DUTY. YOU WERE PUT HERE TO DO SOMETHING — BE SOMETHING. WELL, WHAT'S HOLDING YOU?

Only yourself . . . only your own enfeebling indecision.

"But the human race is still savage," you say; "every man grabbing for every other man's throat. A poor man hasn't a chance."

Are YOU telling ME! I was as poor as you can ever be—as ignorant—and hurt and likewise as full of blubbering self-pity. But, biggolly! I made up my mind and I crashed the gate—

AND SO CAN YOU!

Isn't It So?

Men of purpose are never overcrowded.

You will find fools enough during the day without hunting the main herd at night.

Few persons are born wicked, but many are born weak.

Give each man the training he deserves and then bring the right man face to face with his own opportunity.

Reform yourself and cut down the list of destined rogues.

The secret of living is to cultivate sweetness of disposition and manners.

Boring 'We's' Colorless Beings

By Winifred Black

The young husband crossed his knees and swung one of his rather large feet with a gesture of free and careless rapture that was really enticing.

"Yes," he said, "we like the Sheldons, don't we, dear?"

The young husband crossed his other knee with his other leg and swung his other rather large foot in a lovely rhythm.

"No, dear," he said, "we don't like the Thompsons."

And all the strange, weird evening it was the same.

"We" like this.

"We" don't like that.

"We" read such and such a book.

"We" thought thus and so of the author.

"We, we, we." It was like the insistent hum of a mosquito, that amazing we.

SOUNDS SILLY

Did either of them ever have an independent thought, did either of them ever step out alone for one single instant?

What he liked, what she liked.

What he loathed, she detested.

It was so funny that it was difficult not to explode into a peal of outrageous laughter. And they didn't seem to have the least idea how funny they were.

The next day we heard that the young husband had slipped, in some mysterious way or other, and broken his leg. How disloyal of him, how could he think of doing such a thing, all by himself!

And, sure enough, when I called up to inquire about the invalid, Mrs. Newly-Wed said over the telephone:

"We had a little temperature for a little while, but we're better now. The doctor says we'll have to stay at home ten days anyhow, and that's going to be pretty hard on us."

She did say it honestly, she did, and that poor couple are never going to be called anything but the We's for years and years.

THE WE'S OF THE WORLD, DO WE EVER REALIZE WHAT STRANGL.. SPINELESS, COLORLESS BEINGS THEY ARE —DO YOU SUPPOSE?

Alien Intrigue

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Against American institutions, alien intrigue is more active today than at any time since the Armistice. The agents, tools and dupes of alien intrigue are attempting to undermine what cannot be directly overthrown.

These snakes of alien intrigue are now crawling through Washington. They are infesting both the Executive and Legislative branches of the government. One of their nests is on the campus of a university. Another is in the press galleries of Congress, from which the news of a Free Press is daily distorted.

Alien intrigue no longer operates by poisonous propaganda prepared, subsidized and distributed by alien agents. It operates also through the tools of alien intrigue, some of whom have guilty knowledge of what they are doing, others of whom are too fatuous to realize the role which they essay.

SOME EXAMPLES

Alien intrigue is attacking the common defense by the most insidious methods. Here are a few examples:

By resolution of the Congress the national observance of Army Day became this year not merely a popular but an official celebration. It was a day set apart for the American people to familiarize themselves with the work of the army in peace and in war and to pay homage to their defenders with the colors.

Alien intrigue organized meetings of various sorts, the sinister purpose of which was to prejudice the people against Army day.

This was only a repetition of similar attacks made for several years upon the national observance of October 27 as navy day.

Another example, alien intrigue operating through its secret press agents recently launched a mendacious attack upon the high command of the Army which is falsely accused of "lobbying" against the ratification of the new Panama Canal treaty.

Under the leadership of Senator Johnson of California this treaty is now being studied by the Committee on Foreign Relations.

CALLED BY COMMITTEE

It was upon the initiative of the Committee on Foreign Relations that the High Command of the Army and Navy were summoned to testify regarding the effect of certain provisions of the proposed treaty on the Common Defense. These officers did not seek the opportunity to testify. They responded to the summons of the Senate as was their duty.

For a foreign government, or foreign governments, through their agents, tools and dupes to attack our Defenders with the Colors as "lobbyists" merely because they appear before a Senate Committee in response to a summons of the Senate only shows the audacity with which the snakes of alien intrigue are now striking at the vitals of the American system of government of which the Constitution is the cornerstone, the Supreme Court of the United States the keystone of the arch, the Common Defense the mighty defender and a Free Press the Sentinel on Guard.

War Above the Clouds

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The American clippers span the Pacific, and the greatest of all Zeppelins flies to Brazil and back to Germany carrying 50 passengers and 25 tons of freight.

Edwin C. Hill

Once again war is on in the air, a war to determine which is the craft for commercial conquest of the air lanes, the dirigible or the airplane. It is the 20th century version of the great struggle of the 19th, that of sail or steam on the waves. The victory then was to steam, a victory won on the basis of speed.

Germany alone of all nations clings to the lighter-than-air craft. She has had success with her Zeppelins, whereas elsewhere, notably in the United States and in England, the career of the dirigible has been one of disaster.

Since 1913, 18 major airships have been destroyed in peace time accidents, three of these involving the American dirigibles Shenandoah, Akron and Macon. Another disaster on our shores was the loss of the Italian-built Roma which crashed at Hampton Roads in 1922.

BIG ACCIDENT LIST

England gave up on the dirigible after the destruction of the R-101, largest ship of its kind in the world, which ran into a hill at Beauvais, France, in 1930. This mishap came nine years after the spectacular loss of the ZR-2, which fell in flames into the Humber river at Hull. The ZR-2 was on a trial trip, prior to being turned over to the United States Navy.

France's prize airship, the Dixmude, was lost almost without trace during a flight over the Mediterranean in December, 1923. Fifteen men were aboard, and only the mangled body of the commander of the ship was given up by the waves.

Despite this unhappy record, the dirigible has many staunch advocates here and in other countries outside of Germany. Of course, in Germany she needs none. One just doesn't bring up the question of the airplane against the airship in Friedrichshafen. There they point out to you the Graf Zeppelin and its record of 300 flights for a total of 850,000 miles without a serious accident.

"Match that with your airplanes!" is the challenge of hard-bitten Hugo Eckener. "The airship compared to the airplane! Why it is comparing the elephant with the gnat! Speed? Is speed everything? Is it the most important thing in commercialization of the airways?"

Eckener is wedded to the airship, although it looked for a time as though he would not command the Hindenburg, which is the name of the new ship, when it sails into New York in a month or two on the first of what may be a dozen crossings this year.

The good doctor is in the bad graces of Herr Hitler and his boys. Eckener refused to permit the use of the Hindenburg for propaganda purposes in the recent German elections. He also took no active part in the campaign, saying that politics was not his province.

As a result, his name was conspicuously absent in the German press accounts of the trans-Atlantic flight.

ECKENER REBUKE

After Count Zeppelin, it was Eckener, his assistant, who took up the cause of the dirigible and his building of them at Friedrichshafen.

I recall well the thrill of the first Eckener flights to the United States in the ZR-3 in 1924. The arrival was exciting enough, but the departure was one of the finest sights these eyes have witnessed. It was made at night, and the sight of that great silver bag moving over the house tops of New York was something which only a poet could describe.

The arrival of Balbo's flotilla in Chicago was nothing to compare with it, and in saying that I take away nothing from the glamor of the Italian gesture at the World's Fair.

The Hindenberg is Germany's answer to America's gigantic airplanes which perform such feats as spanning the Pacific from San Francisco to Honolulu in 17 hours, a matter of 2400 miles, at 140 miles an hour.

The new dirigible is much larger and much faster than the Graf. Dr. Eckener is counting on an average speed of better than 70 miles. He figures that the time from Frankfort to Lakehurst will be 65 hours, and the return, with favorable winds, some 20 hours shorter.

GERMANY'S CHALLENGE

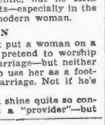
More speed is stressed in the Hindenburg, but not so much as more comfort. Unlike the Graf, the passenger cabins are not in a gondola, but are built into the interior of the ship. Hot and cold water, a smoking room and a promenade are some of its features.

Dr. Eckener likes to point out the spaciousness and hominess of the new ship. He likes to tell how, with a full cargo and a full passenger list, the Hindenberg will be able to show a profit of upwards of $3000 a trip, and how 40 trips a year to South America may be made.

All I want him to say is that the ship will start back from America at night, flying low over the towers of Manhattan. Then I'll be down there on Broadway, looking skyward. There won't be a show or spectacle on Broadway to compare with the one in the heaven as the great silver ship moves out over the Atlantic.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland



Helen Rowland

The old-fashioned husband has always been handed all the bouquets; and most of the time he rated them.

He was the good provider, who came home promptly to dinner, paid all the bills, kept up the insurance, mowed the lawn, took care of the furnace and devoted himself to his own wife.

The symbol of peace, security and domestic virtue!

The modern husband may be less authentic, but he HAS his good points—especially in the eyes of the modern woman.

A WISER MAN

He may not put a woman on a pedestal and pretend to worship her before marriage—but neither does he try to use her as a footstool after marriage. Not if he's wise!

He may not shine quite so conspicuously as a "provider"—but neither does he regard his house as his castle nor his spouse as his vassal and himself as a dictator.

He may not always come home promptly to dinner, if he's a golfer—but he does not regard breakfast as a cue for him to demand that the whole family gather around and watch him read his newspaper.

Indeed, if necessity arises, he can arise, too, and make his own coffee and find his own newspaper. He has no top-lofty notions about "woman's work" or "woman's place."

He may know that he has the "legal right" to open his wife's letters; but he also knows that he has the legal right to step on a hornet's nest. So he respects her individual rights. Safety, first!

He may be a golf-bug who leaves his wife a widow on Saturdays — but he does not hang around the house all Sunday morning acting as an efficiency expert and trying to reform the domestic regime.

He may not coddle his wife—but neither does he try to police her. He would not dream of censoring her correspondence, prohibiting her to use a lipstick, denying her a cigarette or interfering with the chromatic changes of her hair.

THE GOOD POINTS

He may not agree with his wife's political opinion—but he does not pose as an oracle, bubbling over with "good advice" and dropping pearls of wisdom and gems of thought. He lets her have her SAY.

He may go into the silence behind his newspaper at mealtimes—but he doesn't glower or raise a storm when the steak is burnt or when she runs up a dinner out of a can. In fact, he is delicatessen-broken.

He may not be as dependable or even as tender and chivalrous as the standardized old-fashioned husband—but he is more companionable, understandable and chummy.

Oh, yes, modern husbands have their Good Points, even though they do seem mostly virtues of omission.

The old standard model husband may have been more reliable; but the new sport model is more clubby and easier to manage. And most of them are guaranteed to last for at least five years!
